

SPORT SLANTS

By James Sturgis May

When the tornadoes journey down to Kannapolis to-morrow, they are to face one of the stongest junior college teams in North Carolina. Wingate will be favored to take this game, but it is our belief that the Ranson-coached football team from Brevard College will knock the top off the jug and turn in their finest performance of the year thus far—a surprise victory over Wingate.

Our Tornadoes showed up well against Biltmore College last Saturday at Asheville by trouncing them 21—13. "Country" Hicks carried that pork thirty-five yards for one of our markets, and from all indications the lad looked like a scared rabbit. We suppose you wonder how Brevard scored all three extra points after touchdowns. Clayton passed to Love for two of the extra markers, and to McMinn for the other. It was a whale of a game on a sea of mud, and Brevard deserved to win. There were plenty of penalties placed on the Tornadoes during this game by the officials.

Well, we are really going to spread it on thick here the thirty-first of this month, for it is (not my birthday) Home-Coming Day for Brevard College; and the Student Council is now planning for a big day. The Boosters' Club is also going to have a big hand in this, it is heard; but the football game will be the main show of the day.

Thus far this season the home club has scored a total of twenty-eight points, while the opponents have the margin with thirty-three points scored.

Below is the individual scoring list of Brevard Tornadoes:

Love	2
McMinn	7
Atkins	6
Hicks	6

Brevard Takes Biltmore 21-13

Brevard defeated a fast, scrappy football team last Saturday afternoon when they trounced Biltmore College before a small weather-beaten crowd of spectators at the Municipal Park in Asheville.

The Brevard team scored immediately after the beginning of the game. Clayton passed to Hendrix for a distance of forty yards, and then on a line play about seven yards were gained. Atkins took the ball over for the first marker of the season on the next play. Ed Clayton played one of the best games of his career as he ran, tossed, and booted the pork hide over the gridiron. Brevard scored its other touchdowns when McMinn took an intercepted pass over; and our flashing center, "Country" Hicks, carried the other over after recovering the ball. Hicks went over standing up; but John Odom should be given due credit for this touchdown, for he was really doing some real blocking for the home club. Captain Edwards showed up very well in the line along with Bill Ferguson for the Tornadoes.

Coach Hipps' Biltmore College eleven had a system of laterals that baffled the Ranson men throughout the game. Brevard's fast charging line showed superiority over Biltmore College's forward wall during the entire game.

Brevard Faces Wingate

Home-Coming

When you see everybody with smiles so wide October 31, you need not be surprised, for this is the day Brevard College meets Belmont Abbey for the annual home-coming classic of the year. This will be the main event of the day; several other important happenings, however, are scheduled to take place here on the campus. Many of the old grads of former years will be back with us for the day, and we will all be pulling tooth and nail for Brevard College to come through with a victory over Belmont Abbey boys.

Home-coming Day is being talked everywhere by students who formerly attended classes at this institution and who are now working or still futhering their education at some higher school of learning. Many of these students are planning to make this their grand day of reunion. It is being planned to be a gala event for all who attend. A good many parents of students now enrolled in college will be here for this day of celebration, while others from nearby towns who know nothing of going to school here will attend the ball game here in the afternoon.

It is understood that a large crowd is coming up with the visitors for the contest, and with indications everyone at Brevard College may look forward to the thir-

Bell Affects

How cruel fate, fame, and fortune are! Now I am speaking in terms of the bell-ringer—poor soul! One minute he is adored and sought after by all; and the next minute, when the innocent soul has done only the same thing again, he is spoken hashly of, and abhorred. The first thing he does in the mornings causes him to be blamed and to be thought-oh how badly—. He lives such a hard life!! He crawls out of bed in the mornings while we are sleeping peacefully. That in itself is bad for him, but quite all right with us. But he can't be satisfied with that. Oh, no! Definitely not!! He has to come over and pull meaningly on a rope to which is attached that at times despised thing, a bell!! Never was sound more unwelcome than the clattering of the rising bell at 6:30 in the morning. With many unpleasant mutterings in undertone, and some not quite so silent, we crawl unwillingly out of our warm, warm beds wondering why some people are permitted to live.

The next bell, which signifies breakfast, is not so unwelcome. Since we're up, we might as well do something about it. And at any rate the thought of food is never unwelcome to many of us.

The next several bells we receive with mingled feelings. Some of us are glad, some are sorry, and some (who have no classes before chapel) are indifferent.

At chapel we all stir around a little, and from then on till lunch it's just as I previously described it. Then the—oh thrice-welcomed—lunch bell.

The afternoon class bells are waited for by some with more dread; and some who—fortunate whether they realize it or not—are absolutely unconcerned.

ty-first as a day of celebration. Students of Brevard, remember this date to your family and your sweethearts. Let them in on the fun also.
