

Blue "J" Quartet At Talent Night

Some 25 Students Participated In Varied Programs On Talent Night

Music Department
By LOIS STRATTON

What music major does not love the basement of Taylor Hall? There Mr. Artley reigns supreme as head of the college music department. There also are the practice rooms in which each music major spends every free moment from eight a.m. until five p.m. and often much later.

Most of you are familiar with the music department more through the band and the chorus than any other way. The band has made a very creditable showing at all of our football games and its playing gave an air of glamour and excitement which would have been absent otherwise. Next spring the band is going on at least one four-day tour. The route will be probably be announced at an early date.

The chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Artley, will make its first public appearance on the night of Monday, December 6. They will have a ten minute program at a meeting of the Asheville, Marion, and Waynesville districts of the Methodist Youth Conference. Later in the year, they will probably journey to other places.

A membership drive for the State Federation of Music Clubs has also been started. This organization is affiliated with the National Federation of Music Clubs. Dues are fifty cents and any music student who wishes to join will please see Carl Guin as soon as possible.

College Students On Church Program

The morning worship service of the Cliffside Methodist church, Cliffside, will be conducted by students at Brevard college, with the sermon being delivered by J. P. Porter, director of the expansion program here at the local institution.

Brevard college has accepted 15 such invitations from churches in this section of North Carolina. "These visitation programs offer experience to the 20 ministerial students, the 17 young women planning careers in religious education, the numerous Brevard col-

Miss Gates In Charge . . . Candy, Punch, Balloons And Clowns Featured

Over 25 students took part in a "Talent Night" program which took place in the college auditorium on Friday night, November 19.

Caroline Gates, organ teacher, was in charge of the program which consisted of strictly student talent. The program was presented in the form of a three-ring circus with Max McCracken acting as ringmaster.

Candy, punch, and balloons were sold to the crowd which overflowed the auditorium, and clowns roamed through the audience during the show.

One of the most popular skits was the Blue "J" Quartet, composed of boys from dormitory J. Made up in black face were Earl "Hoot" Gibson, Bob Levi, J. C. Grose, and Bob Davis. Bill Huntley, in his natural white face, was called upon to assist the quartet in one number.

Members of the Tornado football squad made their appearance dressed as girls and performed a chorus line. Immediately following this, the football boy's girl friends, decked out in their fellow's football uniforms, came on the stage and gave their version of what the Tornados look like when they are out on the field.

Tumbling acts and much singing added gaiety to the program which provided more variety than any program presented this year.

lege students who expect to be active laymen in their local churches," Mr. Porter comments.

Frank Roberts, of Charlotte, will be organist at the service in Cliffside Sunday morning and special music will be furnished by a quartet composed of Betty Anders, of Hendersonville, Lois Stratton, of Reidsville, Jack Prince, of Kings Mountain, and Charlie Freeman, of Raleigh. The sermon topic will be "Room Enough to Live."

Him: That's nothing! My home town is so tiny that when you plug in the electric toaster the trolley car stops.

New Year - QUOTES

"What an era is every New Year's Day if well considered! Another stage in our journey, a shifting of the scene without interrupting the continuity of the piece . . . the winding up of our watch that it may tell us the time tomorrow; a fresh page in our Book of Existence, in which much may be written."—Caroline Fox.

"No one ever regarded the first of January with indifference. It is the nativity of our common Adam."—Charles Lamb.

"Every man naturally persuades himself that he can keep his resolutions, nor is he convinced of his imbecility but by length of time and frequency of experiment. They whom frequent failures have made desperate, cease to form resolutions, and they who are become cunning, do not tell them."—Samuel Johnson.

"There is too much said at New Year's about turning over a new leaf. Are the old leaves all so badly written that we must hasten to forget them? Is the blank whiteness of the untouched page more pleasant to the eye or more fortifying to the will than those closely written, underlined, untidy, but familiar pages which make up the story of one's life?"—Bliss Perry.

BEAUTY

I never see beauty in people
Unless they are saints, and yet
There are some people so lovely
As a human could hope to get.
God is my idea of beauty
And nature, of course, is God.
Beauty is a daisy growing
Out of mountain sod.
Beauty is a blue bird flying
Into the wild blue yonder.
Beauty is a sunny day;
It's lightning, rain, and thunder.
I can find beauty in everything
Even in pain and strife;
Beauty is everything God creates,
Beauty is just plain life.

CONTRASTS

Why do things always have to end
Before they have really begun?
Why must sadness always appear
To bring an end to the fun?
Something must be bad, I suppose
Or there wouldn't be good in life;
And there couldn't be prosperity
If it were not balanced by strife.
But sometimes it's hard to see just why
Our lives are patterned that way;
We rarely ever stop to think
That we must have night to have day.

Hicks Attends

Hicks also expressed the hope that a vice-president and secretary-treasurer of the student body could be elected by the students at an early date. As of yet the student government at Brevard has not been functioning, but officers and council members will be chosen in the near future, Hicks continued.

Purely Unintentional

Jenks, a popular young broker, has finally admitted, after making many attempts at the game, that golf is not for him.

The irrevocable decision, he sheepishly admits, came one day when, after a particular brutal session in a sand-trap, he sought to relieve the uncomfortable silence by cherrily declaring to his caddy: "Funny game golf."

To which the boy morosely replied: "Taint meant to be."
