Dance Is Given For Ball Teams After PJC Game

After Brevard's first home football game last Saturday night, the players and rooters celebrated with a dance in the recreation room of West Hall. A large number of students attended, as well as members of both football teams. The Delphian initiates enjoyed the dance more than anyone else, it seemed, for they were in civil dress again after having gone two days outlandishly clad. They added to the enjoyment by carrying out the orders of the old Delphians.

Music for the dance was provided.

Many Activities Scheduled By Members Of Music Department

Great things are to be expected from all phases of the music department this year. With Bruce A. Livengood, head of the department, and Mrs. Louise Miller, Earl Holloway and Allen Lind, the Brevard college music groups are already making plans for public and campus performances.

The first student recital of the year will be on Friday night, October 7, at 8:30 in the auditorium of Dunham hall. There will be both instrumental and vocal solos presented by the students of Mr. Livengood, Mrs. Miller, Mr. Holloway and Mr. Lind.

The program will be as follows: Norma King, piano, "Solfeggiato" by Bach; Caroline Davis, piano "Scotch Poem" by MacDowell; Charles Barkley, piano, "Nocturne in E Flat" by Chopin; Betty Lawrence, piano, Three Preludes by Chopin; Ann Smith, piano, "Waltz in A Flat, Opus 64, No. 3," by Chopin; Gwendolyn Pickelsimer, piano, "Tyrolean Dance" by Williams; Frank Roberts, voice, "Inquesta Tomba" by Beethoven; Betty Boykin, voice, "In the Silence of the Night" by Rachmaninoff; and Loise Stratton, voice, "Automne" by Faure.

Effort Is Being Made To Increase The School Spirit

Now that football season has rolled around once more, everyone has started getting ready to yell their lungs out for Ye Olde Brevard as the ball is toted over the goal-line for a score. For some, it will mean silence the next day, to the extreme bliss of their fellow students. For the tougher ones, it will only mean a little lower voice, maybe bordering on bass. And when you think of yelling, you naturally think of cheerleaders, so here is the inside view of the trials and tribulations of a cheerleader.

At the very first of school, many were thinking that they would like to become a cheerleader for the Tornados. Some dropped by the wayside as the practice began, but even then there were more trying out than the needed number, so Miss Add Lea Morgan was given the job of choosing just the right ones for a hard job. After much deliberation, the following were chosen: Jean Eaker, Billie Lowrey, Maxine Renshaw, Eleanor Orr, Batey Taylor, Sonny Allen and Speedy Cranford. Three of these members Eleanor, Maxine and Batey —were on the squad last year. During a practice session Tuesday Eleanor Orr was chosen as head cheerleader by her fellow squad members.

As soon as the try-outs were over and these aforementioned seven came out victorious, they began their practices in dead earnest. Then all racked their brains for new yells, and a few were worked up for the first game.

Last Friday night at the pep rally, the cheerleaders were encouraged by the response they received. The students put forth a real effort to learn the yells, and the band members did their part

Dance Band Is Organized; To Choose Singer

At the homecoming dance October 29, Brevard college students will get their first glimpse of this year's dance band. Several members played for a few shuffles after the P. J. C. game last Saturday night, and from all reports, it sounded "good enough."

Leading the musicians this year will be Ravon Smith, a Gastonia boy. He is the fellow who makes with all that music on his trumpet. Other members of the crew will include Bill Duckworth, alto saxophone; Max Robinson, baritone saxophone; Mutt Lowman, trombone; Archie Miller, bass; and Dick Kelly, drums. The piano and tenor sax chairs have not yet been filled, and vocalists will be chosen in the next few weeks.

According to information furnished by Smith and Miller, a favorite from last year's band, the accent this year will be chiefly on sweet music; coupled with some modern specials by Ravon and Archie.
