Girls' Intramurals

Brevard college is now a member of the North Carolina Athletic Federation of College Women. Three delegates from our campus attended a conference last month on the campus of Guilford college. While there, they learned what other schools are doing in order to build a strong program of intramurals for their women students, and they gained some ideas to follow when they returned to Brevard to plan an athletic program.

Since that time the athletic board has worked hard to perfect their tentative plans for the remainder of the school year. But—unless the girls are interested and will come out and participate when their teams are scheduled to play, all the efforts of the board members will be in vain. The board is working for the girls, and it is our school spirit that should prompt us to support and cooperate with the advisors of the intramural program. If you haven't been down to the gym lately, why not drop around to find out how much fun you have been missing?

Perhaps you have heard that block "B" letters are to be awarded this year. Would you care to earn one? Contact the athletic board for information about it. The physical education department heads would like to see a lot of these letters being worn during the latter part of the year as well as next year. As the song title goes, "Ask Anyone Who Knows"; they'll tell you what an athletic letter means to you.

Hats Off To The Administrators

Say, guys and gals, have you been over to the basement of West Hall lately? Silly question; of course you have, but natch! Didn't you notice something new? Well, how'd you like it?

Many a student has expressed his delight over the new student center and post office in the old recreation hall in the basement of West. It is the answer to our pleas and gripes. Too often we are hasty in forming opinions of our administrators and advisers, but now we should turn the tables and give them the praise and the thanks that they should have for making the new center possible. It's always a good maxim to give credit where such is due.

The addition of the juke box and the popcorn machine are attractions that speak for themselves. Let us keep the center the place that it should be, and let's not abuse the privileges that have been made possible for us. By doing these little things, we will be showing the administration that we do appreciate their cooperation in our social life.

College Glee

erts, Charles Barkley, Nathan Lovelace, Lloyd Stiffler, Ray Cain, Bob Hauss, Ravon Smith, J. C. Grose, Frank Lowman, Bob Peele and Billy Lasley.

Soloists for the concert were Bettylou Boykin, Betsy Ross, Loise Stratton and Frank Roberts. Mr. Bruce A. Livengood is director of the group, and Mrs. Earl R. Holloway is the accompanist.

The chorus is now making plans for the spring tour which will begin in early May. This trip will be to Greensboro and the surrounding territory.

Student Council

The two freshman representatives will be the two girls from the class who poll the highest number of votes.

May Day has been set for May 6, the first Saturday in that month. The details have not been worked out as yet, but they will be announced to the students at a later date.

BIG SAFETY YEAR

In 1941-42, more Red Cross certificates were issued to persons completing health, safety and other training courses than in any other year.

Bird's Eye View

"Spring is sprung, the gras is viz. Wonder whar the flours is?"

Aint that a plum cute litel ole vers tho? It's rite fitten fer whut it's lak at Bervard nowadaies. All cept fer the calinder, whut don't say it's sprung yit, a body wood think it wuz Aprill. Speshully ifn they didn no, an wuz gessin by how it looked. Awl aroun you kin here peepul a-sniffin and a-coffin and a-tawkin bout chils an feever, but I rekin that will chang over ter spring feever in a litel while now. Miz Pilot (I'm allus reel keerful ter spel her nam rite) is nice and chairful these daies an puts things in the rite spirit by bein thetaway. Awl them lovy-dovys think thets mitey nice, natcherly.

I guess you awl has seen them kites they ben a-flyin aroun hyar. Ain't they purty, tho? Tother daie when the wind wuz blowin so hard I wuz a-wishin ter git me one an go out thar with them younguns and fly myself a kite. I didn tho 'cause I heerd it wuzn't the thing fer a nice an refined gurl with dignuty and larnin lak me ter do. So I jest set thar at my winder an watched. Some boys from the collej wuz out thar with big ole fancy kites. They wuz bout 6 at furst an they flue so perty fer a whil, an then one got itself cot in a tree, an one thet wuz made lak a box tore up an some more got away. Finley they give up. Them litel fellers is the ones thet nose how ter fly kites.

I wuz a-wonderin tother daie ifn anybuddy hadn't heerd bout Hadercall. I'm hear ter tel you, good peepul, it's the best thing on the markit. Ever day you kin her sumbuddy ravin bout whut its did fer thim an there families. Why, they wuz one man with a woodn laig, an he tuk Hadercall all the time, three times ever daie. One daie he spilt some on his laig an he has ter carrie a ax now ter keep the sprouts cut off. Even them men on the raddio ses it cant be beet. Folks, I ergree with thim whut nose. Ifn you need a good spring tonick, jest git yorescf a carlude uv Hadercall. Its good fer whut ails ye.

DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

"For as he thinketh in his heart, so is he." Proverbs 23:7.

A large club in a certain city was planning a banquet, and in order to have a broad program of entertainment, they invited a famed northern minister as the featured speaker. During the course of the dinner, speaker after speaker arose and gave their speeches which included off-color, smutty jokes. These caused roars of laughter from the crowd. When time for the minister's talk came, he merely rose, laid down his written speech and said, "Gentlemen, I came with a message, but after hearing the contaminated jokes this evening, I feel assured that your minds would not be able to grasp the inspirational theme of my talk." Therewith, he promptly left the room.

Have we the courage of that minister to stand up for the right? Do we possess the intrepidity to refuse certain things, or must we compromise and follow those elements which are not Christ-like?

DOMESTIC ECONOMY

Wife: Oh, John, the woman next door has a hat just like my new one.

Hubby: Now I suppose you want to buy another?

Wife: Well it would be cheaper than moving.

Pine Whispers

That much-talked-of anti-social club, from all appearances, has been disbanded. Moe has become quite the gay lad, and even came out enough to take someone to the dance. Barbara's reason enough, as we see it.

And Colie, too! Dot, did you draw straws when you chose him from among the numerous hopefuls who had plans for escorting you to the dance?

Eddie Thomas and Betsy Bowman appear to have more than just a chemical attraction for each other.

Weren't Terrell Harris and Jimmy Barker the happy ones last week end?

Few people realized that a celebrity was present at the Valentine dance. Those who did were very much impressed by Gil Coan, baseball star for the Washington Senators.

You had better be careful Marty, Bruce might get jealous.

We couldn't believe our eyes when we saw Ratch and Evon together. Hope it was more than just for old times' sake.

Wonder what Helen will think of Bill Beasley's haircut when she sees it?

Tommy Higgins has become a lone wolf (?) lately since Speedball found an interest in feminine companionship—namely Peaches.

That certainly was a nice-looking basket of fruit that Bill sent you while you were in the infirmary, Eloise.

P. R. and Russ have decided to make it for keeps. Here's to you, kids.

Ebby didn't waste any time in staking his claim for Toopie. To speak in no uncertain terms, she's got it.

Mary Ann, did you have a good time in Concord last week end?

Greensboro is awake at last. With Sherman and Jennie Lee, and Harold and Jean all paired off, they make a good showing.

Archie can be seen around West Hall often now-a-days. Could it be Jane?

There are rumors that Pat H. is carrying the torch for Joe Walker.

Anne Deas and Don Hogewood certainly did make a good-looking couple at the Valentine dance.

Jim Perry has already made himself known to the girls, especially one in West.

Many pairs of eyes looked twice when Lizette displayed that monster of an orchid at the dance. She not only had a bouquet for the dance—the one she got for Valentine's Day was still in its prime. Say, Liz, does Jimmy have a brother, by any chance?

Bill Ikerd, why don't you give the girls a chance? We know of several who have their eyes on you.

And with that we close this column once more, but only to await further developments.

Approximately one-third of the motor vehicles inspected by highway patrolmen on the roads of North Carolina last year were found to have faulty equipment.
