Thanksgiving Holiday Changed From Thursday

Phi Theta Kappa Has Tapping For Three

Three sophomores were inducted into Phi Theta Kappa, national scholastic fraternity, at the regular chapel meeting on Tuesday, November 13. Members Carol Carter, Wilburn Harrison and Charles Yarbrough tapped Worth Wilkerson, Carl Outen and Tom Neal in ceremonies termed simple, but impressive. Mary Dean, president of the honor fraternity, presided.

Brevard College Joins New Conference According To Tornado's Coach Eppley

The Brevard college basketball and baseball Tornados will be operating in a new conference this year. Brevard has joined with five other junior colleges of the same rank in western North and South Carolina to establish the Western Carolina Junior Athletic conference. The new conference officially began operation October 17, when the six schools — Brevard, Asheville-Biltmore, Mars Hill, Lees McRae, North Greenville, and Spartanburg—resigned from the Carolinas' Junior College conference.

Three big reasons factored the move which created the new league:

(1) The Carolinas conference was so large and spread out that teams

Holiday Announced For Saturday Here

Thanksgiving holiday officially has been confirmed as Saturday, November 24, instead of Thursday, the nationally - observed day, according to an announcement made today by Dean J. J. Stevenson, Jr. This announcement is made after action was taken by the faculty to change the holiday because of special request made by the Student Government association.

The association met in chapel and requested a student body vote on the matter of having the date switched. A majority vote of nearly two thirds confirmed the request made by students. Then the resolution was taken to the Dean of the school, who in turn brought up the matter for faculty consideration.

Cafeteria Will Remain Open

Remaining open for Thanksgiving weekend, the college cafeteria will offer traditional delicacies of the season. The dining hall will serve all meals throughout the day to accommodate those students who will remain on campus.

Activities On Thanksgiving

Although classes will continue throughout Thanksgiving Thursday, there will be special observances for the occasion. A special chapel program will be given at 10:00 in the auditorium.

Thursday evening in the cafeteria at 8:00, the faculty is sponsoring an entertainment program for all students. There will be dancing and several kinds of games. The entire student body and faculty are invited to this celebration.

Ministers Sponsor Bible Reading Here

Brevard college will join thousands of churches and other schools which will cooperate with the worldwide Bible reading program from Thanksgiving to Christmas, according to an announcement by Frank S. McFarland, president of the college Ministerial club.

Bible readers in many languages join in using the same selected list of Scripture passages for this period of approximately one month. The movement is headed by President of the United States Harry S. Truman—and members of the central committee for choosing citations are laymen of inter-faiths.

McFarland states that the club expects to distribute reading lists to college students and faculty members alike. Officers of the Min-
