Give Cupid A Chance At The Valentine Dance

Extended Program For 1955 Announced By Cultural Seminar

The Scandinavian Seminar for Cultural Studies announces an expanded program for the 1955-56 academic year.

Since 1949, both graduates and undergraduates have been offered the opportunity of living and studying for a year in the Danish folk schools or residential colleges. This year, as an alternative to Denmark, students may select Norway, Sweden, or Finland as their country of study. They may also carry out research in their particular field of interest during their stay at the folk schools. Each student will be assigned an advisor in his field, and the February field trip will be used primarily for independent research or for visiting institutions which pertain to his study project in any or all of the Scandinavian countries.

The study projects are an integral part of the program and include the following subjects:

Adult education, the cooperative movement, international relations, arts and crafts, folk schools, education, physical education, labor education, music, home economics, agriculture, folklore, literature, history, social welfare and social legislation, politics, religion, and youth organization.

The Seminar members will, as previously, achieve an intimate contact with the people by learning a Scandinavian language while in the country of their choice. They will live with several families during the first few months and participate in a series of group seminars. These include intensive language study and courses on the cultural background of Scandinavia. During the five months at a folk school, students will follow the same curriculum as that of their Scandinavian classmates.

The folk schools were started in 1944 by Grundtvig, Denmark's internationally recognized educator and theologian and a contemporary of Kierkegaard's. They have proven to be ideal for the purpose of the Seminar, for they, perhaps more than any other single institution in Scandinavia, reflect the life and culture of the people.

The cost of the entire nine month program, including board, room and tuition, is $800 plus travel. Two $400 scholarships are available.

NOTICE

Have you heard about the exciting afternoon spent Tuesday by Miss Medlin and Miss Froneberger? Be sure to get the whole story. The cop was cute too, according to Miss Froneberger.

Ecusta Announces Scholarship Grants

Ecusta Paper corporation has introduced a tuition scholarship program designed to assist six college students each year, Robert H. Stamey, president of Brevard college, announced.

Scholarships of $200 each will be provided each year for two children of Ecusta employees for a two-year course at Brevard college. One scholarship of $400 will be awarded each year to a Brevard college for two additional years at an accredited college or university.

Selection of applicants to receive the scholarships will be made by committees composed of representatives from Brevard college and Transylvania county schools. No person in any way connected with the company will take part in the awarding of scholarships. Recipients will be selected on the basis of general scholastic record, ability, character, citizenship and leadership.

Any child of an active employee is eligible for consideration for the two Brevard college scholarships, provided the parent's service was one or more years. The two-year advanced study scholarship to an accredited college or university is available to any graduate of Bre-

Tonight's the night! What night? Why, the night cupid lets go with the arrows at the annual Valentine dance held this year in the basement of the Women's Residence hall, of course.

All week supporters of various candidates have been chipping in their pennies for votes for their king and queen choices. The balloting was carried out at a dime a nomination and a penny a vote. Who the king and queen are is yet to be known for they won't be announced until the dance is half over.

Admission is 75 cents per couple and 50 cents stag or hag; semi-formal is the word for dress. The Euterpeans and Clios, sponsors of the affair, are hoping the faculty will be well represented as they are all invited as special guests of Cupid.

Valentines, cupids, arrows, and hearts of all sizes and shapes will undoubtedly have the basement well masked for the occasion. According to Beverly Jordan, program chairman, a colossal floor show is planned to complete the evening. The decorations will all be done by Beverly Trantham, Vera Ann Rahn, and their draftees. The over-all chairman of the dance and director of affairs is James Morton.

Now that we've heard a preview of the big occasion, how could we possibly miss it? So, naturally, "see you at the dance!"
