Brevard College, Watch Out! Here Come The Old Grads

As Easter approaches, many colleges throughout the Carolinas are observing spring vacations. This, of course, brings an influx of old students back to Brevard Tech.

All around campus there are joyful cries as sophomores meet old friends and catch up on what has been happening in the last few months. Freshmen wander by, stare at the old grads with puzzled expressions and mutter, "Who's that?" or "Oh, no, not another one."

Following these reunions, the sophomores talk about "the things we did last year." The freshmen, hearing all of these memories, resolve that "WE won't be that way next year." Maybe they won't be that way next year, but they are that way this year. For here come some Brevard graduates they met at Christmas and the frosh run along with the sophomores to scream their greetings and catch up on the news.

McLARTY WINS OSCAR - By Proxy

A name that has been featured in the news recently has a special attraction for Brevard College's president, Emmett K. McLarty. Charlton Heston, Academy Award winner for his performance in "Ben Hur," and Lydia Clark were married approximately 14 years ago by Dr. McLarty, who was then pastor of Grace Methodist Church in Greensboro.

Mr. Heston, a former student at Northwestern University in Indiana, was stationed at the local military installation. His bride, also an actress and student, had come to Greensboro for the marriage, and they walked around town looking for the prettiest church they could find. They saw Grace Church and were married there by Dr. McLarty. The witnesses were two ladies who were setting tables for a church supper.

It was Dr. McLarty's custom to accept no fees from servicemen. For years, the McLartys received a Christmas card from the Hestons every year, and one year the card contained ten dollars.

The witnesses, Mrs. O. S. Poer and Mrs. Ernest McIver, visited Hollywood after Heston had become nationally known and there received a message to deliver to the minister. Mr. Heston told them to tell Dr. McLarty, "This marriage took."

Brevard Gives Afternoon Tea

On Sunday, April 3, members of the Brevard College faculty, staff and Alumni Association, led by Mrs. Emmett K. McLarty, entertained with an Open House for students, their parents, and friends. Members of the faculty were present to meet the parents as they accompanied their sons and daughters back to school after spring vacation.

President and Mrs. McLarty greeted the guests as they reached the faculty lounge of the Campus Center Building. Mrs. Gil Coan was in charge of the delicious variety of refreshments. Approximately 175 persons were present.

Sophomores Live And Learn And Study Lit

If sophomores at Brevard ever published a list of the most-read books on campus, Lieder, Lovett, and Root's British Poetry and Prose would probably head the list.

The lit book is the constant companion and informative friend of the sophomore.

It is the teacher of poetry and the professor of the English language.

It is studied when all other books lay untouched. Why? Because if you're lucky, you might learn something you can throw into passing conversation—a good quip, you know. Besides, it's required for graduation!

It is carried to the library, to the soda shop, and the lounge.

Its contents are discussed anywhere, anytime, any way. And from these discussions, the sophomore learns that not only are the authors confusing but that everyone has a different interpretation of how they're confusing.

Its authors are interesting—we cannot lead the lives they lead, but then we can't write as well either.

Its contents are not to be understood or interpreted, but are to be scanned according to the "Goddess of Study."

This then is the sophomore lit book—friend of those who want to graduate, enemy of those who would waste time. Beware, freshman, for you are bound to join the SOPHOMORE LITNIKS next year. Get out your beret and sunglasses, be a studious culture-vulture, and buy a lit book!!

Brevard College Holds Holy Week

Services for Holy Week were held on April 11, 12 and 14 at 7:30 in the First Methodist Church. Pastor Courtney Ross spoke on "Portions of the Lord's Supper" on April 11 and 12. Wednesday night, April 13, President McLarty spoke at vespers. Thursday night, April 14, at 7:30, Holy Communion was taken by the students in the First Methodist Church. Friday morning at 7:30, Mr. Roy led the morning meditation. During chapel, President McLarty spoke, after which everyone went to the lily pond, where a dogwood tree was presented and planted by the Delphian Society. The Westminster Fellowship had a Holy Week display in the Sims' Campus Center Building.

Hold Up The Banner, Elections Are Here

Get out the banners; stand on the soap box. Election time is here again

At the last meeting of the SGA, ten candidates were nominated for 1960-61 Student Council posts. There will be two candidates for president, two for vice president, two for secretary-treasurer, one for CLARION editor, and one for PERTELEATE editor. After a vigorous campaign, a general student body election will be held to choose the new leaders.
