

Dunham Is Oldest BC Building

The oldest and best-known building on our campus and one which each and every student is familiar with is Dunham Hall. In this building almost all classes are conducted and for this reason it might be called the "knowledge building" of Brevard College.

The building we now know as Dunham Hall, was originally known as Spenser Hall. It was erected in 1895 and was dedicated to Mrs. J. C. Spenser of Charlotte, who contributed the funds for the erection of the building. Spenser Hall was built during the administration of Mr. C. H. Trowbridge, whose picture hangs over the door in the library.

Until the Campus Building was built, Dunham Hall was the administration building. It also contained a library, bookstore, and recreation lounge. When the library was built, the library part of administration building was divided into offices, and when the Campus Center Building was built, the bookstore and lounge were moved. At this time the building became known as Dunham Hall. It was dedicated to and named for Mr. H. A. Dunham, a prominent Asheville businessman and philanthropist, who contributed a quarter of a million dollars to the college. An oil painting honoring the great and benevolent gifts of Mr. Dunham now hangs in the library.

During the administration of Mr. George Ehlhardt, Dunham Hall was almost lost in the enveloping flames of a destructive fire. On a Friday in the fall of 1950, fire broke out in Dunham Hall. This fire occurred during the redecoration of Dunham Hall, just before the painting was finished. The fire was controlled before completely ruining the inside of the building, but on the following Sunday, it broke out again and completely ruined the whole interior. The building was closed all year for renovations and was not reopened until the following fall semester. The closing of Dunham Hall presented a great problem for space. The offices were moved to the library, and all parties, chapels and even graduation exercises were held there also. Classes were held in the old science building and in some empty dormitory rooms. When the building was reopened, all offices and classes were moved back and the college was finally back in order.

There have been many changes in Dunham Hall over the years. The most recent change was when the C.C.B. opened and the new auditorium was being used. With the new auditorium, the old one in Dunham Hall was no longer necessary. The balcony was torn down and the ceiling extended. This gave space for extra class rooms which were so badly needed.

Dunham Hall through all its varied experiences has still remained to serve the purpose of our most important building on campus.

Girls Honor Mrs. Dellinger In Dorm

Shouts of "Happy Birthday", "For she's a Jolly Good Fellow", and "Throw her in the shower", rang from Jones Hall on October 3. The big occasion was Mrs. Dellinger's birthday. She received a birthday cake and a gift certificate from all the girls in the dorm. Mrs. Dellinger was surprised and said that she would always remember this birthday party because it was the largest she had ever had. After expressing her appreciation to the girls, she added, "I'm glad I came to Brevard College."

Who Is Most Domestic?

Ha! And girls think they're so smart! Always going around bragging (they try to give the impression that they're complaining) about having to wash and iron clothes, sweep, mop, and wax the floors, yak, yak, yak! And all the time they act as if we fellows don't have enough sense to do these things for ourselves!

Well, I reckon we showed them, huh, fellows? Well, did we or didn't we?!

During these first weeks of school at Brevard Tech, we have washed and ironed our own clothes, swept, mopped, and waxed our own rooms, and kept track of our clothes far better than any girls could do it! Right, fellows? Well, am I right?!

You don't believe me, girls? All right, look at the facts: after our first week's washing, nearly all of us fellows had a collection of beautiful, multicolored clothes; if you have a white shirt you don't like many more, stick it in the machine (monster) with pair of black pants, and presto! You have a beautifully colored shirt! Smart, huh? Why couldn't you girls have thought of that?!

Now ironing the clothes is a different matter! It may take a little practice for us fellows to catch on to that — but it promises to be great fun! — There's one thing that puzzles me, though — Where do those little yellow spots come from? On a sport shirt, they look pretty good, but on a white shirt, they don't look so hot — that is, unless you have a tie that matches them.

Why are these bandages on my hand, you say? Well, that iron does get pretty hot at times, doesn't it? But it's only a small burn — I'll probably be able to use this hand again in another six weeks or so.

Can we mop?! Why sure, and we've developed a pretty good system for that, too. Just throw a little water on the floor, sweep it out the door into the hall, along with all the trash or dirt that might happen to be on the floor, and presto! You've done two jobs at once — swept and mopped! Girls are sure dumb, not to think of something like that! — So who cares about the water in the hall — we don't sleep in the hall, do we?!

Well girls, satisfied now? Well, good. And remember, anything girls can do, boys can do better!

Oh, by the way, does anyone know of a maid who would be willing to do simple chores, such as washing and ironing clothes, sweeping, mopping, and waxing? If so, send her around to Green 07.
