Midsemester Honor Roll Is Announced

Peace Corps Lauds College Project

The Peace Corps has awarded Brevard College a beautiful certificate of recognition in regard to Brevard's involvement and achievement in the Corps' School Partnership Program. The certificate is signed by Mr. Jack Vaughn, Director of the Peace Corps.

The School Partnership Program is a vital part of the work of the Peace Corps. Basically, the project involves building a school in some remote area of the world from funds raised from the area and from the school sponsoring the program. The project was assumed by Brevard College prior to the Christmas vacation last year. Funds were raised in various imaginative ways. The entire faculty and a majority of the campus organizations conducted the drive. Mrs. Sigmon and Mrs. Craig donated their "white thumbs" and sold their bakery delights. A faculty auction was held — typing, home-cooked meals, trips to the airport, cookies, and bridge lessons were all subjected to bids. A faculty talent show was held in addition to a student talent show. The dorms and the SGA provided a dance and gave all proceeds to the project. The Westminster Fellowship gave their money from the concessions stand at the sophomore carnival for the program. However, the goal of $1000 had not been reached. Local friends of Brevard College helped end the campaign with a grand finale. They aided in raising the final dollars to hit the goal.

Miss Bobbie Jean Nicholson, who was the "guiding light" of the project, was greatly responsible for its success. She led the faculty and students in a united drive for the money.

Received along with the certificate was a letter from Mrs. Brenda A. Brown, Director of the School Partnership Program. In part, Mrs. Brown wrote:

"We are pleased to forward this certificate to you, as lasting evidence of your achievement, and as a reminder of the gratitude of the people in your partner community overseas and of the Peace Corps."

The school was constructed near Sangare - Feramoozkham, Iran during the summer. It stands as a tribute to world freedom and an aspiration for world peace.

The Clarion staff wishes to extend its sincere sympathy to Dean Harris and family on the death of the Dean's father.

Brevard College's Patsy Neal Is Having Busy Year

A busy fall and winter lie ahead for Miss Patsy Neal, a staff member of the Brevard College Department of Health and Physical Education.

Miss Neal, one of the nation's foremost authorities on women's basketball, is in great demand to give lectures and conduct basketball clinics throughout the nation.

Last week she gave a one-day clinic on the campus of Wake Forest College for the National Institute on Girls and Women's Sports. Tomorrow she journeys to Hays, Kansas for the Kansas State Physical Education Convention. Her demonstration and clinic will consist of basic fundamentals, offense and defense, coaching and teaching techniques.

She will lecture November 17-19 in Ypsilanti, Michigan, at the Michigan State Institution for Girls and Women's Sports to be held at Eastern Michigan University. Thirty-two teachers from the state of Michigan will be selected to attend the basketball sessions. Miss Neal will cover rebounding, hook and jump shots, combating the zone, man-to-man and zone press defenses, and coaching defenses.

She will lecture in January and February at Northern Illinois University and Winthrop College in Rock Hill, S. C.

In addition to the above activities, Miss Neal somehow finds time to coach the men's tennis team.

College Harriers Favored In Meet Today

Brevard College rates the favorite's role Friday afternoon as Coach Thad Talley's cross country squad acts as hosts for the Western Carolinas Junior College Conference Cross Country Championships.

The Roadrunners have shut out each of the opponents that they will face in the conference meet during the regular season. Enroute to a perfect 10-0 record "Talley's Terrors" have had only four points scored against them all season.

Battling for individual conference honors will be Brevard's Bob Gray and Dave Fussell.

Gray stands unbeaten during the season, while Fussell has lost only to Gray in nine of the meets, tying the Camp Springs, Md., freshmen in the last meet of the season.

Coach Talley will take his squad to the National Junior College Athletic Association Championships next Wednesday. The championships will be held on the campus of Nassau Junior College in Farmingdale, New York.
