

Plans Revealed For President Davis' Inauguration

THE MASQUERS practiced long and hard for delightful "Brigadoon." Here David Jennings, who played a rejected lover, reads sulkily in a scene during practice.

Recitals Of Private And Local Students To Be Held

Two sophomore formal recitals and recital by local students studying privately under members of the music faculty at Brevard College will be offered April 24th, 25th and 26th.

David Jennings, baritone, Cathy Wilson, piano and Penny Taylor, soprano, will appear in recital Friday, April 24th at 8:00 p. m. in the auditorium of the Dunham Music Center.

A student of M. Thomas Cousins, Miss Taylor is a native of Roanoke Rapids. She plans a career in entertainment, correlating her training in voice with dancing, a subject which she has studied for 14 years. Miss Taylor recently appeared in Fiona MacLaren in the Brevard College Masquers' production of "Brigadoon."

A music education major, Mr. Jennings is a native of Miami and studied at Brevard under Harvey Miller. He plans a career in church music after completing his education at Indiana State University.

A pupil of Mrs. Louise Miller, Miss Wilson is a native of High Point. She plans to transfer to the University of North Carolina at Asheville to complete her studies for a degree in music with an ultimate aim to teach music in private instruction.

The principal recital of the year featuring local students who take private lessons from members of Brevard's music faculty will be held Saturday, April 25th at 1:00 p. m. in the music center auditorium. Local students are eligible to receive private instruction from members of the College's music faculty as their individual schedules permit. Those members of the faculty who are teaching local students during the current academic year include Mrs. Louise Miller, Samuel Cope, Joan Moser, Harvey Miller, M. Thomas Cousins and Martha Poole.

The third recital will be held Sunday, April 26th, at 3:30 p. m. in the sanctuary of the First United Methodist Church of Brevard and will feature Lynn Sheppard and Cynthia Slate, organ, Eddie Rousseau, trombone, and George Gunza, trumpet.

Both Miss Sheppard and Miss Slate are pupils of Mrs. Adelaide Miller. Miss Sheppard is a native of Graniteville, South Carolina, and plans to continue her studies for a four-year degree with a major in organ. She plans a career as a music teacher. Miss Slate a native of Delray Beach, Florida, plans a career as a professional accompanist. She has accompanied many of the college's vocal groups during her two years at Brevard.

Mr. Rousseau is a student of M. Thomas Cousins and plans to major in music theory. A native of Charlotte, he plans to transfer to Florida State University after graduation from the local junior college. Also a pupil of Mr. Cousins, Mr. Gunza is a native of Westfield, New Jersey. He plans a career in music education.

The public is invited to attend the recitals without charge.

ATTENTION!!

At 12 p. m. Saturday, April 25, Daylight Savings Time will be in effect. Those "aware" students who still don't know are instructed to add 1 hour to the time on their clocks.

ATTENTION!!

Approximately 125 delegates from colleges and universities in the east will participate in President Davis' Inauguration ceremony Saturday, May 2, 1970. This will be an important occasion not only for the Brevard College students and faculty but for the community as well.

Students Have Special Invitation

The Inauguration Committee at Brevard College has released more details on the forthcoming inauguration of President Robert A. Davis and has issued a special invitation for all members of the community to take part in the inaugural activities.

C. Edward Roy, chairman of the committee which is in charge of all phases of the inauguration, has announced a full schedule of activities in conjunction with the inaugural ceremony itself, which is slated to take place at 2:30 p. m. on Saturday, May 2.

The calendar of events will begin with an Inaugural Dinner Friday, May 1st. Attending the dinner will be members of the faculty, administrative officers, members of the college's Board of Trustees and their wives.

Speakers for the occasion will be Dr. Myron F. Wicke, General Secretary of the Division of Higher Education of The United Methodist church. An Inaugural Concert, presented by the Brevard music department, will begin at 8:30 p. m. in the auditorium of the Dunham Music Center. The public is invited to attend the concert without charge.

An Inaugural Luncheon for trustees, special guests of the college, and delegates from other colleges and universities, will be held beginning at 1:00 p. m. Saturday, May 2nd, in the A. G. Myers Dining Hall. The Inaugural Program will follow at 2:30 p. m. in Boshamer Gymnasium. A reception honoring President Davis will immediately follow the ceremony. It will be held in the James Addison Jones Library.

"We hope that our many friends in Brevard and Transylvania County will make plans to attend the Inauguration of President Davis," said Mr. Roy. "It would be an impossible task to send personal invitations to all of our friends throughout Transylvania County, and we are taking this means to invite all of them to share with us in this most important event in the life of Brevard College."

Don't Throw Old Clothes Away AAUW And WICS Can Use Them

If you have clothing you aren't going to take home, it can be put to good use if it is still in good condition. Girl's clothing is badly needed by the WICS (Women in Community Service) to girls who are being sent to train for a new life in the Job Corps. Sleepwear, lingerie, all kinds of clothing, and small suitcases are constantly needed. Boxes will be in Beam and Jones dormitories if you have things you can give. Boy's clothing can be used for school children in the county.

Books can be used by the A.A.U.W. (American Association of University Women) for a book sale this June to raise money for graduate school scholarships for women from both America and other countries. A box for this will be put in each dormitory for these items.

Pollution Problem In The News

ACP Editor Poll On Pollution

(ACP) — Fifty-nine per cent of the nation's college newspaper editors see pollution as an immediate threat to their lives according to a recent poll conducted by the Associated Collegiate Press.

Two hundred polls sent out to colleges across the nation and of the 98 polls returned, 29% indicated that this threat of ecological pollution had lessened their desire to propagate.

Organized movements dedicated to fighting pollution have begun on 45% of the campuses represented, and 20% more should experience such movements in the near future.

However, 52% of the editors polled did not feel that pollution will become a more important issue on their campuses in the near future than the draft or the war in Vietnam.

Sixty-eight per cent of the editors have considered or waged an editorial campaign against pollution, but only 13% are members of an organized group against it.

When asked what they were doing to prevent pollution, 46% admitted they were doing nothing.

Many of the others are using their editorial pages to make the public aware of the problem.

Some are fighting pollution by leaving the anti-pollution devices on their new cars, or by not owning a car and walking to and from school.

A couple are stopping smoking or guarding against littering; a few are writing their congressmen. One editor and his future spouse plan to adopt children rather than have their own.

Some editors are organizing rallies and teach-ins, but about 20% don't seem to consider pollution to be a major threat to their lives or their campuses.

One fellow from Nebraska comments: "I do not do anything to aid pollution, but the problem here is not as bad in many places, I feel."

Another from Georgia says he is doing "nothing because of the location of our college—in a small southern town. Pollution is not so obviously a threat here as it is in metropolitan areas.

One girl expressed the opposite viewpoint: "I'm finding out as much about it as I can, so I can act intelligently to prevent it. In the meantime, I'm doing what I can."

Michigan Teach-In Draws 15,000

(ACP) — Ann Arbor, Michigan — In what many environmental activists view as the prototype of the April 22 national teach-in, students at the University of Michigan staged a four-day series of demonstrations, speeches, seminars, and other activities to show their concern about ecological problems.

Sen. Gaylord A. Nelson (D-Wis.), who originally proposed the teach-in idea, said the Michigan event marked "the beginning of a massive movement in this country to

Plants Tell Us That There Is A Problem With Air Pollution

(ACP)—The Daily Universe, Brigham Young University, Provo Utah, (48-70) "Plants tell us that air pollution is a problem . . . and the story they've been telling us is that the problem is becoming acute." This is how Dr. Robert Daines, professor of plant pathology at Rutgers University, summed up the effects of pollution on plants at a seminar Tuesday sponsored by the College of Biological and Agricultural Sciences.

Dr. Daines discussed the effects of five types of pollutants—florides, sulphur oxides, ethylene, ozone and peroviacetalnitrate (PAN).

establish quality on a par with quantity as an aim of American life."

He said that when he proposed the teach-in idea, "the best I hoped for was teach-ins on 40-50 campuses," but that nearly 1,000 colleges and 2,500 high schools now were planning teach-ins in April.

More Than 125 Sessions The teach-in at Michigan—first also was the site of the first teach-in against the Vietnam war, in 1965—consisted of more than 125 sessions.
