

BURTON KENNEDY must be wondering if anyone plans a "birthday party" for him as he tests the frozen pond located between Beam and Jones Dorms.

(Photo by Kent Deardorff)

A. H. Sims Is Recognized At Informal Reception

By David Arledge

On Saturday, February 6, Brevard College honored Mr. Allen H. Sims with an informal reception at the new Sims Student Center.

Mr. Sims arrived at 3:30 p. m. Saturday and was met by President Davis. He and the President then toured the new building. Mr. Sims appeared delighted with the size of the new Center and remarked, "I am proud, an extremely fine job has been done."

Prior to the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Sims attended the basketball game with President Davis and his family. During the halftime he was honored with a brief tribute and a standing ovation.

Later that evening Mr. and Mrs. Sims and Dr. and Mrs. Davis returned to the Student Center where they greeted students, faculty, and friends of the college. Refreshments were served by the girls of Jones Dorm, and entertainment consisted of recorded music by the Music Department. Local clubs and industries from the town and county presented to the center fourteen beautiful arrangements of flowers.

That night as Mr. Sims crossed the campus, he remarked to President Davis, "You know, this is really a beautiful campus."

Mr. Sims has a right to feel proud of Brevard College, for he has given unstintingly of his time, leadership, effort, finances, and recruitment of students.

Dr. Lesueur To Present Flute Recital Tuesday

Dr. Alex Lesueur, well-known local flutist will present a recital Tues., Feb. 16, at 4 p. m. in Dunham Music Center Auditorium on the Brevard College campus. Lesueur, who is principal flutist with the Asheville Symphony Orchestra, has been heard frequently in this area.

Dr. Lesueur holds degrees from North Texas State University and the doctor of musical arts from the University of Michigan. He has studied with leading flutists, including William Kincaid who was first flutist with the Philadelphia Orchestra for many years.

Dr. Lesueur is associate professor of music at Western Carolina University. His teaching duties include instruction in all woodwind instruments.

Included in the program will be works by Telemann, Kennan, and Schubert. Barbara Doolley, of Cullowhee, will accompany Lesueur. (There is no admission charge for this program.)

Lesueur has recently recorded a selection of flute music. This record will be released for distribution in February.

EVELYN CANDILOROS

BETTY FULLER

TIM PIPER

Mr. Patrick Leeder Overcomes Handicaps To Excel As Brevard College Student

By Susan Harrell

Mr. Patrick Leeder came to Brevard as a student from California and is presently in his fourth semester. He is a member of Phi Theta Kappa, anticipating graduation in May.

His seniority over his fellow students definitely requires extra push, but this is a readjustment solved by many adults going back to the college campus for further education. Mr. Leeder is at greater disadvantage in that he is restricted in his process of learning to only two senses, hearing and touch. Therefore, he must approach a sight-oriented, educational system without the benefit of blackboard demonstrations, the visual aids we all depend upon for clarification and the most basic aid, the textbook.

In 1949 Mr. Leeder was a high school student taking Braille notes that were slow for him and distracting to other students. At Brevard he uses tapes and a recorder both in and out of class. In a lecture class he has, in a handy case beside his desk, a recorder that enables him to concentrate fully on the lecture, without notetaking interrupting his train of thought. Then later he can play back the tape for study purposes. This, I believe, is a decided advantage over some of the rest of the students. He never misses an important word, and witty professors jokes are never lost.

The textbook problem has been solved for Mr. Leeder through a non-profit, volunteer group, active throughout the country recording academic textbooks. With the arrival of mid-semester, Mr. Leeder is already researching the text requirements for the fall semester and sending them to be recorded. This free benefit he appreciates for its reduction of outside time otherwise taken when a friend must read to him chapter by chapter. Presently, Mr. Leeder estimates that he possesses 100 reels of tape comprising seven or eight books.

Tests are most often done at home, on a typewriter if they require essay response. Short answer tests and mathematical problems are executed orally.

Mr. Leeder lives close to the campus in Brevard with his wife Dorothy, a native of Brevard, and his six-year old daughter. Most of his spare time is spent with his family and an amateur radio hobby. Not physically inactive by any means, he has just finished a semester of swimming to his enjoyment and satisfaction. He is now working on weight lifting and is contemplating bowling in the future.

Unsure of college transfer plans, Mr. Leeder comments that he has been spoiled here at Brevard College, and he has doubts about receiving such easy treatment elsewhere. Upon completion of his education, he is looking forward to Rehabilitation Counseling, and he will leave Brevard College with the student body's admiration and wish for success.

Second Recital Of Semester Is Set For Tonight In Dunham

The second Sophomore music recital will be held Friday February 12 in the auditorium of the Dunham Music Center. Featured will be Miss Evelyn Candiloros, Miss Betty Fuller, and Mr. Tim Piper. All are students of Mr. Harvey Miller.

Mrs. Nell Norris Feeds Taylor Men

Third floor, Taylor dorm had a change of pace Sunday February 7, by having their evening meal at the student union.

This was made possible by Mrs. Nell P. Norris, Taylor Hall's dorm director.

Mrs. Norris is using part of the profits from the vending machines in Taylor Hall for the purpose of giving every floor a hamburger and soft drink treat on Sunday night.

This came as a welcomed change to the inhabitants of third floor.

All of the other floors will do the same on various weekends.

This will give everyone in Taylor a break from the Sunday night sandwich blues.

Miss Candiloros, a soprano, will present numbers from Treharne, Wolf and Monteverde, with Mr. Piper as accompanist. Evelyn hopes to attend Glassboro State College in New Jersey as a drama major, minoring in music.

Miss Fuller, also a soprano, will offer works from Puccini and Scarlatti. Accompanying her will be Miss Celia Tolar. Betty will be attending UNC at Chapel Hill upon graduation and hopes someday to teach either vocal or choral music.

Mr. Piper, a pianist will play selections from Mozart, Bach, and Bartok. Also Mr. Piper will accompany the girls in two duets entitled, "Under the Greenwood Tree" and "Spring Wind." Tim hopes to attend either Greenboro College or UNC in Greensboro. He will pursue a career in music.