

Davis holds open conference

about his "concepts" course in Physical Education, asked why only one hour's credit was given for a course which requires two class hours plus extra hours for studying each week. Dean Wade replied that all courses are related to a standard three-hour course, and that it had been decided that a student does one-third the work in P.E. that he does in a course such as English or Religion.

When questioned about the rumor that "Only 50% of the sophomores returned to Brevard this year," President Davis responded that this figure is inaccurate. Between 35% and 40% did not return, he said; out of 350 Freshmen that registered for the 1970 fall semester, 125 did not return. A large number of these people transferred to four-year colleges and universities, a few didn't make it academically, and others dropped out to work. Several people were asked not to return because of academic and/or disciplinary reasons, but this number was minimal.

A co-ed inquired why the rooms in Jones Dormitory were not painted as they were supposed to have been. It was decided that if one's room is in dire need of painting, he should tell his dormitory director. He should not try to do it himself.

When questioned about the bugs and rats which have been ravaging the halls and rooms of Jones Dorm, President Davis replied that he would lend his cat. In a more serious vein, he said that if anyone has this problem, he should report it to his dorm director and the situation will be remedied.

When there is noise in the dorm, said President Davis, one should not be afraid to report it. Better yet, he should ask the source(s) of the noise to quieten down. College students should know how to be considerate of their neighbors. After 10:00 p.m. a minimal amount of noise should be expected.

A male student asked what could be done about the parking lot behind Taylor Dorm. Dr. Davis replied that the cost would not be much to grade the parking lot and that the situation would be looked into. He also stated that the long-range plan is for Taylor to be replaced (not necessarily demolished), possibly within the next 3 or 4 years.

A freshman music major was concerned over the fact that it is a long, dark path from the Methodist Church where she practices back to the dorm. She requested that lights be installed along the way so that "the townies" wouldn't get her.

In reply to her complaint, President Davis said that the Trustees had voted to renovate the basement of Dunham so that more practice rooms would be available and the walk to the church would not be necessary.

Another student asked why meals couldn't be bought on a meal-by-meal basis. She brought up the fact that when a student goes home for the weekend he might miss up to seven meals. President Davis said that this had been considered in the overall price of meals, and that meals could not be served on a pay-as-you-eat basis because the cafeteria workers have to plan on a certain number of students to eat and the board plan is the more efficient plan. Someone else wondered why the menu couldn't be changed every once in a while. It is because there are so many students eating in the cafeteria that there must be a basic meal plan to avoid confusion. Another complaint concerned the overcrowdedness of the cafeteria. Fred Dean said that a Cafeteria Committee would be investigating this. They will also investigate the milk and ice cream situation because many are complaining that they are not getting enough of these two things. A sophomore commented that the Sunday night meals have improved since last year.

A girl from Jones reminded President Davis that the girls in her dorm were getting scalded in the shower because of the poor plumbing. Dr. Davis said that this probably could not be remedied because the building is so old. Other problems concerning water are the fire hydrant in front of Taylor which has been draining constantly since the first of school and the fact that the hot water in Jones is dirty. The fire hydrant will be repaired at fall break, but Jones girls will continue to bathe in rusty water.

A boy from Beam asked why campus phones could not be installed in both the East and West wings of his dorm because the parlor, where the campus phone is now located, is off-limits to students after closing hours. This will be taken up with Mr. Hunt by the dormitory directors in Beam. The dorm directors in Green and Taylor will also talk to Mr. Hunt to see if more phones can be installed in these two buildings.

President Davis closed by saying that meetings like this will be held, hopefully, once a month. We are all striving for a better Brevard College, and we should all take pride in our school. We should help to keep the campus clean, and this will be made easier to do when plans of placing garbage cans around campus are fulfilled.

Dunham basement to be renovated

At the recent meeting of the Board of Trustees, a major topic considered was the renovation of the basement of Dunham Music Building. It has been announced that all architectural preliminary drawings have been approved, and the trustees have instructed the architect to begin the working drawings. The equipment priorities have not been approved; it is supposed that some equipment will be approved, however, at the next meeting of the Trustees in May. This equipment includes pianos, organs, and audio-visual aids, and, although no renovation will be necessary there, a major recital organ for Dunham Auditorium. At this time it is hoped that many pianos, organs, and other high-cost equipment will be donated by friends of the college.

Included in the renovation will be a large instrumental rehearsal hall, a classroom, a piano laboratory, a student lounge, an organ and small ensemble practice room, eight teaching - practice studios, and several storage areas. This basement section will greatly increase the functionality of the Dunham Music Building by providing much needed studios, practice rooms, a small rehearsal hall, and a large rehearsal room.

Cope to give recital Tuesday

An informal faculty recital featuring pianist Sam Cope will be presented October 12. Mr. Cope has been a piano instructor at Brevard for two years, but is perhaps known best by many sophomores as director of last year's production of Camelot. A native North Carolinian, Mr. Cope received his B.A. in Music from Catawba College. He earned the M.A. degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and has since done graduate work at Indiana University.

Mr. Cope's recital will begin with Les Trois Mains (The Three Hands), by Rameau, a piece so called for its many crossings of the hands, and will continue with Reflections in the Water, by Debussy. Of special interest will be Sonata for Piano by Harvey Miller. Mr. Miller, also a member of the Brevard faculty, is an instructor in voice, piano, and music literature as well as director of the Glee Club. This piece is one of many works which Mr. Miller has composed. To conclude the recital, Mr. Cope will perform Pictures at an Exhibition by Moussorgsky.

The recital, beginning at 4:00 p. m., will be held in Dunham Auditorium. The public is invited to attend.
