Music Department presents formal sophomore recital

The Brevard College Music Department will present a formal sophomore recital on Friday evening, February 4th at 8 p. m. in the Dunham Music Center Auditorium on the college campus.

Featured will be Burton A. Bumgarner, Martina Anne (Tina) Summers and Jayne Anne Sams.

Mr. Bumgarner, a piano student of Sam Cope of the college faculty, will be performing music by Bach, Chopin, Debussy and Prokofieff. He is presently accompanist for the Glee Club and plans to continue to Baldwin-Wallace College Conservatory next year, after graduating from Brevard College.

Miss Summers is a voice student of Harvey Miller, also a member of the music faculty, and she will be performing works by Bizet, von Weber, Strauss, Mozart and Engle. Tina will be participating in the forth coming musical "Lil Abner" being presented by the music department this spring. She plans to continue her education at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in Music Education. She will be accompanied by Robin Vaughan.

Miss Sams, a flutist, is a pupil of Miss Irene Brychein of the music department, and she will be playing Sonata for Flute and Piano by Francis Poulenc and Sonata I in D Minor (Andante) by J. S. Bach. Jayne has been a member of the Asheville Symphony for the past two seasons. Robin Vaughan will be her accompanist.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

BC to supply tutors for Swannanoa, N. C.

Brevard College has been asked to supply a particularly responsible group of tutors for a particularly critical group of tutees. The Youth Services Center, Swannanoa, N. C., has made this request.

The Youth Services Center, Swannanoa, was established in November, 1970 to help meet the growing need for prevention of delinquency. The project originated in the Department of Juvenile Corrections and was funded by Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. The main thrust of this project is in accepting referrals from any concerned person or agency in the region of western North Carolina which

Speakers announced for spring Convocations

This semester a number of good speakers have been chosen to present the programs for the 1972 Spring Convocations. Ed Kilbourne is to be the guest for the February 23 Convocation. A talented singer, he speaks through songs and blends rock ballads with contemporary folk songs. His commentary is interjected into this medium. In the past several years, Ed has appeared in all the leading cities and numerous smaller towns throughout America. He has also recorded several LP albums and is in wide demand as a performer. He appeals to people of all ages, and particularly college students.

For March 6 Reverend Thomas Stockton has been asked to return and present the address for Encounter Week, an annual event sponsored by Christian Council. Many students may recall the interesting talk he delivered earlier this year. He presently is minister at Central Methodist Church in Asheville, North Carolina. Mr. Stockton will deliver three lectures during the week on a subject to be announced at a later date.

Bishop Ole Borgen is to be the speaker for the Convocation on April 5. An alumnus Brevard College, he is presently Bishop of the Northern European area of the United Methodist Church. His headquarters is in Stockholm, Sweden.

What is a Christian College?

Brevard College is owned and operated by the United Methodist Church. There are some very distinct differences between a state and church school. Possibly some individuals on this campus wonder what is unique about a church school.

For this reason, anyone on campus is invited to submit to the Clarion ideas on the following questions:

- 1) What is a Christian college?
- 2) What makes Brevard a Christian college?
- 3) What purpose should a Christian college serve in our society?

These ideas are to be turned in by Tuesday, February 8, to Mr. Hugh Moran, Mike Jones, or Dennis Brown. They will be printed in the Clarion on February 11. Man-on-the-street interviews will also be conducted.

A panel discussion will be held on these same ideas following the February 11 issue of the Clarion. Members of the Administration, faculty, and student body will be invited to participate. The date of the panel discussion will be announced.

it serves. These referrals are youths who have been determined to have problems, have not yet been committed to the Juvenile Correct on system, but have been brought to the attention of people who work with juveniles. The staff of the center then processed with a systematic, diagnostic evaluation of the situation.

In the course of helping these referrals a definite need for tutoring outside the public school structure has been identified as a way to increase the learning possibilities. As the learning possibilities increase there is good evidence that the drift toward delinquency declines.

Time patience, and attention are key words in working with youth of this nature. College students are closet to the educational process and know some of the problems of public school in terms of too little time and help for slower students. They are also sensitive to and aware of the problems of adolescence.

If you would like to be trained for this type of demanding tutoring, please contact Mr. Tawney who will forward your name to Youth Services Center.

"Ribbon" to entertain tonight

Social Board is sponsoring a coffeehouse tonight, at 9:30 p. m., after the recital in Dunham Auditorium. It is planned that the coffeehouse will be held in the ping pong room in the Student Union Building.

The night's entertainment consists of a folk group from Bat Cave, N. C. The group, "Ribbon", made up of two girl guitarists who sometimes write their own music, and a bass accompaniment, previously auditioned for Social Board. The "Ribbon" sing both folk and rock music.

Laurie Kidd, in charge of the coffeehouse, says "the group especially likes touring small college campuses because they like the closeness of associating with the kids."

The admission to the entertainment is free and everyone is encouraged to attend.

Bus fund reaches

$3500.00

The Brevard College Bus Fund, started by two BC students, Cathy Schilling and Fred Dean, recently overshot the $3500.00 mark. This is a far cry from the $15,000 needed for purchasing a new 30 passenger bus.

The money was donated by interested and concerned parents, dormitories, and a large donation of $2,000.00 was received from the Student Union Legislature.

To help in raising more funds, the Brevard College Recycling Program will hopefully get into full swing on Feb. 26, but will depend entirely on student help. The current plan calls for a house to house drive in the town of Brevard. To accomplish this, students are needed. Also, it is planned that students will be needed to overlook a drop off point probably in a shopping center in the community for those people that would rather drop off their glass and paper than wait for a student to come by their home.

If only a few students volunteer, the whole program will have to be dropped. This is an important project not only for the bus fund but also to strengthen ties between the college and the community. For those students interested in helping please contact Cathy Schilling or Fred Dean.

NOTICE

A proposal is being made by the Student Union Legislature so that the cafeteria might remain open until 8:45 a. m. Monday through Friday.

In order to keep this privilege, students must show that they respect it by putting up their trays and by keeping the tables and floor as clean as possible.

Hindu speaks to classes

Mr. Vasant D. Chapnerkar pulled two gods from the minilla envelope. One was an elephant's head with a human body, the god of strength. The other was a man with a flute, Krishna — one of Hinduism's primary gods. Mr. Chapnerkar, a native Indian, spoke about such idols and other aspects of his religion, Hinduism, to Mr. L. H. Lawing's World Religions classes here Tuesday and Thursday mornings.

He went on to explain that the gods worshiped in Hinduism were at one time mortal people, who, through reincarnation, had come into oneness with God. Reincarnation is the concept of one's soul return to earth in another body. What kind of body one is reborn into is determined by the good or evil deeds he has done in his present life.

Hinduism cannot be classified just as a religion for it is actually a way of life. Each home has its own temple and gods are worshipped daily, not just once a week. Castes are distinct hereditary social classes, each of which formerly was not allowed to associate with others. Mr. Chapnerkar said that strict caste distinction is no longer practiced.

With fourteen languages spoken in India, Hinduism has absorbed vast minor changes and may vary from region to region. If the way of life changes, the religion changes, making Hinduism one of the world's most liberal and adaptable religions.

Mr. Chapnerkar is presently Director of Fundamental Research for the Research and Development department of Olin Mills. Brevard has been his home for the past several years, though he visits his native home in India when the opportunity arises.
