

Summer Jobs In Europe Now Available To College Students

Now any student can independently earn his or her trip to Europe by simply obtaining a paying job in Europe. A few weeks work at a resort hotel, or similar job in Europe paying free room and board plus a wage more than pays for the new $165 round-trip Youth Fare being offered by the scheduled airlines. A couple more weeks on the job earns money for traveling around Europe before returning home.

Thousands of paying student jobs are available in Switzerland, France, Germany, Italy and Spain. Neither previous working experience nor knowledge of a foreign language are required for many jobs. However, to make certain every student gets off to a good start on his job the Students Overseas Services (SOS) provides job orientation in Europe. Jobs immediately available include resort, hotel, restaurant, hospital, farm and sales work. Jobs almost always pay free room and board in addition to a standard wage.

Jobs, work permits, visas, and other necessary working papers are issued to students on a first come, first served basis. Although thousands of jobs are immediately available, applications should be submitted far enough in advance to allow SOS ample time to obtain the necessary working papers and permits. Any student may obtain an application form, job listings, and the SOS Handbook on earning a rip to Europe by only sending their name, address, name of educational institution, and $1 (for addressing, handling, and air mail postage from Europe) to SOS - Student Overseas Services, Box 5173, Santa Barbara, California 93108.

"Perspectives On Communication" Answers Undergrads Questions

Cambridge Mass. - (I.P.) - The freshman who asks the difficult question — "What should I major in?" will find 38 answers in a new booklet prepared for Harvard and Radcliffe undergraduates.

The new booklet, "Perspectives on Concentrations," includes descriptions of 34 fields of study by 38 leading scholars at Harvard. Prepared by a committee of students and faculty under the direction of Dean K. Whitla, Director of the Office of Tests, the booklet tries to provide undergraduates with a more vivid view of the nature, rewards and disappointments of academic disciplines than they would gather from catalogue descriptions.

President Derek C. Bok, in his foreword to the pamphlet, indicates the concerns which led to its production: "The essays grew out of our desire to convey to students a sense of the special opportunities and the personal rewards of the various fields of concentrated study available to them during their undergraduate years."

"In a sense, the essay attempt to compensate for some of the inevitable gaps and weaknesses of the traditional system of advising. With an undergraduate body of 6,000 students, it is not possible to arrange prolonged individual discussions about fields of concentration between each student and a member of the faculty.

"The discussions that do take place often focus upon concrete, practical questions about courses and concentration requirements. Something more is needed. Students should be able to feel the intellectual excitement and understanding the intangible rewards of concentrated work in different fields.

"They should know some of the reasons that persuaded another person to devote his energies to a particular subject. They should appreciate the reasons why more experienced scholars consider their field to have meaning and importance."

Contributors to this booklet have written from a personal standpoint, dealing not with the bare facts and requirements of their fields, but with some of their own personal experiences, triumphs, and failures. Almost all of the writers discuss the motives which prompted them to enter their fields in the first place, and many discuss where their field of study will be going in the next half century.

New Ideas And New Approaches In Higher Education

Galesburg, Ill. - (I.P.) - Colleges and universities must restructure themselves for a "new era" in higher education, Dr. Sharvy G. Umbeck, president of Knox College, remarked.

He called also for a new "format for institutional governance which facilitates change, which can bend without breaking, which can move with speed where speed is called for, and perhaps most important of all, which can accomplish these ends without violating the rights or ignoring the responsibilities of any segment of the college community."

Calling for institutions to develop new sources of income, he cited such potentially profitable ventures as investment opportunities in real estate and interinstitutional cooperation in investment management. "The long-range potential of vacant lots, empty factory buildings, desert acreage, swamp land, grazing land, etc., is not always so immediately apparent."
