Film Class Offered

An Introduction to Film will be offered Spring semester. The class will meet on Wednesday from 6:00 - 9:00 p.m. in Room 115. The prerequisite for this course is English 101 or 103.

This year the films will be shown generically instead of chronologically, as they were last year. Those students who took the course last year will be able to take the course again for 3 hours credit.

The movies to be shown are Owl Creek Bridge, One-Eyed Men, Red Balloon, Great Train Robbery, Great Chase, Easy Street, Dracula, Cabinet of Dr. Caligari, Some Like It Hot, Bedazzled, Thirty-Nine Steps, Night of the Hunter, Duel, Casablanca, A Man and A Woman, Missouri Breaks, Another Man, Another Chase, Rollerball, THX and Nashville.

Preston the magician will appear tonight at 8:15 pm.

Life And Culture Features Magician, Hypnotist

By Susan Rogers

Preston, the acclaimed magician and hypnotist, will appear tonight at 8:15 in the Brevard College Boshamer Gymnasium.

Attendance records show that Preston is the most popular entertainer in the history of Brevard College. When he performs in 1979, he received a standing ovation. When he returned in 1981, he attracted the largest crowd ever assembled for a visiting entertainer.

According to reports from his other performances and from Brevard College students who attended the event in previous years, those attending the Preston's show are in for an evening of fun, laughter, and amazement. The highlight of his show is the demonstration of hypnosis using volunteers from the audience.

Preston is a talented and accomplished magician, and is a past president of the International Brotherhood of Magicians. He was also chosen to appear in "Who's Who on the American Stage."

Since attendance at tonight's program is expected to be heavy, students are advised to come early.

Prospective Students Enjoy Opportunity To Tour Campus

By Paige Dickens

Have you ever wondered what those groups of unfamiliar people are doing walking around campus on Saturday morning? The explanation is that several Saturdays during the year the Office of Admissions presents special programs for prospective students. These programs are Visitation Days which allow high school students the opportunity to know more about Brevard College. These students and their parents can meet Admissions officers, the Deans of the College, and ask questions about academics, student life, athletics, and financial aid. The schedule includes a tour of the campus and lunch in the cafeteria.

The reaction of these prospective students has been extremely favorable. Most students who visit our campus eventually choose to attend Brevard.

The Student Ambassadors also enjoy the opportunity to meet people and encourage them to attend Brevard. According to Student Ambassador Co-Chairman, Nina Shafer, "it is rewarding to know that people you talk with are impressed enough to attend Brevard. It is especially nice when you see familiar faces on campus from one of last year's Visitation Days."

The next Visitation Days are scheduled for Spring Semester.

Many Financial Aid Programs Available To Eligible Students

By Joy Nichols

Brevard College offers students various kinds of financial aid. These are numerous merit scholarships available, such as the Angier B. Duke, Anabel Lambeth Jones, and Allen R. Sim's Scholarships, Dean's Scholarships, President's Scholarships, and Courtesy Scholarship. Fifteen Summer Session Scholarships are also given to rising high school seniors. Talent Awards are given to students who demonstrate aptitude in athletics, art, drama, or music. Those who show outstanding leadership qualities may be eligible for Citizenship Awards. Also available to students are many grants, loans, and the College Work-Study Program. If any student wants financial aid, (s)he must file either the Financial Aid Form (FAF) with the College Scholarship Service, or the Family Finance Statement (FFS) with the American College Testing Board. Once a student has filed one of the forms, he has officially applied for aid. The FAF of the FFS forms may be obtained from any high school or college financial aid office. Students who want scholarships should ask the college(s) for specific information and for scholarship applications.

As Madeleine Madden, a Brevard College sophomore, says, "If you're going to get the money, you've got to apply for it." Last year, Madeline took her own advice by applying for scholarships to attend Brevard College, and she received three of them. One was the Angier B. Duke Scholarship, which is a full scholarship. Madeleine is a music (piano) major, who also plays the oboe and the saxophone. Jeff Moore is another student who had received the Duke Scholarship. After applying to Brevard College, he was invited to attend and to compete in its annual Scholarship Day Competition. He applied for the Duke and Sim's Scholarships. Jeff, who is from Georgia, applied to several schools there and "was in the running for a couple of other scholarships." When asked what he thought might encourage others to take advantage of the financial aid available to students, he said that financial information, especially scholarship information, should be given to high school students sooner than it is. He feels that this would be incentive for them to perform better academically and would encourage them "not to slack off in their studies." Jeff said that he didn't develop much interest himself in scholarships, nor did he give "much serious thought" to his grade point-average until his junior year. For some students, that is too late. High school freshmen and sophomores should be given more information about scholarships and financial aid.

Christine Pellicio has received the Allen H. Sim's Scholarship and she thinks that students, especially college students, should receive, at the beginning of each semester, a notice outlining all financial aid and scholarships available to them. Christine is a sophomore at Brevard College and is taking Advanced French and Beginning

Spanish and wants to major in International Law. In Florida, she received several scholarships, which she turned down, and Brevard College also awarded her four different scholarships, some of which were "cancelled out" by others. Christine was "happy and relieved" to get the Sim's Scholarship because it gave her the opportunity to attend a junior college, instead of attending a Florida community college, for which she also had scholarship. When asked if she

Students Perform For Parents

The 1983 Brevard College Parents' Weekend Student Talent Show was a great success. Dunham Auditorium was filled to capacity with both students and parents.

The show contained a wide variety of acts. Some of the favorites were a pantomime from Grease II, a dance to Michael Jackson's "P.Y.T." and the Midnight Jazz Quartet.

The judges for the show were Major Jack Burwell, Mrs. Laura Campbell, Mr. Ray Fisher, Mrs. Libby Martinson, Dr. Clara C. Wood and Mr. Preston Woodruff. The masters of ceremony for the event were Terry Hodges, Ernie Hunt and Brian Merusi.

The winners of the show were: first place-Kim Jenkins singing "Misty" with The Midnight Jazz Quartet; second place - Wilburt Robinson, Tim Wall and Darryl Williams dancing to "P.Y.T." by Michael Jackson and third place - The Midnight Jazz Quartet.

Tina Taylor, Frank Justice, Sara Carter and Darryl Williams perform in "A Broadway Gala."
