Women's Softball: Improving Everyday

Dustin Free

The Lady Tornadoes softball season began with eleven returning players and eight of nine starters from the previous season. Last season the ladies finished fourth in the conference the program experienced the most wins in a season and the highest conference finish.

Ashley Rice and Bonnie Adams are both juniors that have been two-year starters with Rice receiving an all conference award last season. Other players that we should be on the lookout for are sophomore transfer Vanessa Marlowe, freshmen Andrea Bailey, and freshmen pitcher Rachel Howard.

Coach Jones believes that improving everyday is essential for the progress of the team and their development in to a winning ball club. Jones says, "The conference standings, one through six, should be extremely tough and not much separating them." The tornadoes have a tough out-of-conference schedule with only two opponents, Southern Wesleyan and Spartanburg Methodist, that are not in the NCAA division two.

This schedule was designed to strengthen the team's play and prepare them for the tough conference match ups they will encounter throughout the season. They do not play much at home, but when they do, take time out to support our team.

Home games left in the season:

- March 26, Virginia Intermont
- April 6th, Montreat College
- April 12th, Mars Hill College
- April 16th, Union College
- April 20th, Tenn. Wesleyan
- April 23rd, UVA-Wise
