

Students perform internships on Capitol Hill

by Joseph Chilton
Editor in Chief

While most students headed south for Spring Break on the beach, five students from Dr. Lisa Jordan's Economics 301 class headed north to perform one-week internships in Washington D.C.

The trip, which was coordinated by Jordan and the AFL-CIO, placed each of the students in different internship settings, with students earning one hour of internship credit for their week's work.

When not working, the students were able to take in the sights, as the group toured the Capitol, the Roosevelt Memorial, and the National Museum of the American Indian.

"This was a good experience," Jordan said.

"My intention in them going on this trip was for them to get a grasp of the complexity of how Washington works, particularly how that relates to

see D.C. trip, page 2

Current BC students Kyle Hamilton, Ryan Fiffick, Ian Townson, Dana Ainsworth and Savannah Rutledge pose with former students Thomas Moore, Jamie Michaels and Cody Kinsley during a Spring Break trip to Washington D.C.

Pupil's Underground Second Issue Distributed Off-Campus

What's Inside?

News.....	2
Cartoon.....	3
Opinion.....	3
Sports.....	4
March Madness Odds.....	4
Arts and Life.....	5
Political Scandals.....	6
Classifieds .....	8
American Hero.....	8

photo by Zach Harding

Margaret Ann Medley hands out the second issue of the Pupil's Underground outside of the Brevard College Gates on March 14. Medley was forced to hand the publication outside of campus by Campus Life. The controversy generated by Medley led to 'The Pupil's Underground' being covered by several prominent local news outlets