The Art Department's juried student art exhibition opened last Friday at the Spiers Gallery, with the awards ceremony taking place at 6 p.m. Amelia Norris' "Turbulence" (top right) took home Best of Show, Laura Barr's "Opening" (top left) took first place, and Josh Carter's "Man of Fire" (bottom left) was awarded Students' Choice. Other winners not pictured include Dean A. Mobley's "Swivel Sticks II" (second place), Jocely Ashworth's "Ascending II" (third place) and Zach Porch's "The Gift" (President's Choice). The Spiers Gallery is open weekdays from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. and the art will be on exhibit until April 17.

WTF?

Staff Writer Gretchen Allie will from now on write a weekly feature in which she presents quandaries for which the only response she can think of is "WTF." If you have any dubs-TF moments, please let her know so she can share.

- The other day I put on shorts, I walked outside, and it was snowing. What happened to global warming? WTF?
- I went to the cafeteria and scanned my card. I had to scan it again and it worked. WTF?
- Today, I was walking, and I saw a white squirrel chasing a brown squirrel. WTF?
