"Buzzing Bees in Happy Trees"

By Rachel Anthony

On this beautiful Thursday afternoon, I found myself strolling around campus with my camera when the faintest sound halted me in my tracks--dozens of buzzing bees weaving in and out of pink flower petals that draped from the tree by the Porter Center. I stood there, absolutely fascinated.

To see so many bees in one place, moving from flower to flower, completely oblivious that my camera and I were standing there...it was a lovely moment to capture.
