The international picnic has become a tradition and always calls out for a lot of fun.

Organized by Paul Morgan, Le Tavoloni and the house parents of the internationals, this year's picnic had been a full success.

At noon, everyone gathered in front of the gym to head off to Pisgah, where they were greeted with a wonderful lake-view, delicious food and great people.

After eating and chatting, the students headed to the basketball court or played some games with the house families. With the great atmosphere, everyone was relaxed, enjoyed the sun.

The relaxing atmosphere was quickly dispersed when the familiar and unavoidable bickering about which student's country was superior to the rest. The group learned very quickly that New Zealanders and Aussies are definitely not the same people.

As well as the fact that the German is a language that, no matter how nice you are, sounds angry when you speak it.

Later, everyone gathered in teams of two to play a game. Coincidentally, there were exactly two people from the same country combined into a team- there was a Team Great Britain, Team Africa, Team Germany, Team Canada, Team Down Under, Team Finland and Team Latin America.

At the end of the day, Team Great Britain made it to the top, followed by team Finland and Team Latin America.

At 4:30 p.m. everyone was back on campus with memories of a great and fun afternoon. A big thank you goes to everyone who helped to organize this great day and making the internationals feel so welcome here at Brevard College!
