MARCH 12: "Grounding Space"--a milder Outward Bound type of all-day exercise for women only; 8:00 to 5:00; $9; organized by the YWCA, Switchboard and Hassle House (Durham). Call Durham YWCA for full details. Other mixed-groups organized at later dates.

MARCH 24-26: Easter weekend conference at Aloe Community, Cedar Grove, N.C. (north of Hillsborough). The small "intentional" community's members will offer workshops relating to sharing work, income, material possession, time, space and decision-making. In addition, Judy Lashof, Firefly and Alan Tuttle from the Movement for a New Society will lead workshops which examine gayness as it relates to each of us personally and to society; also workshops specifically for lesbians and for gay men.

The cost, including registration and seven meals (Friday lunch at 2 p.m. through Sunday lunch) is $25 per person unless one pays before Feb. 28 ($19) or Mar. 10 ($22). Limited dormitory-style sleeping space will be available. Bring your own tent or camper if you have one. When registering, or for more information, enclose a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope to this address: Aloe Community, Rt. 1, Box 100, Cedar Grove, N.C. 27231, (919) 732-4323.

IN GENERAL

Square dance lessons for interested gays: Mondays at 8 p.m. in the UNC Student Union's Deep Jonah.

BERNHOLZ, M.T.

In addition to the possibility of criminal prosecutions, gays should be aware that they may encounter discrimination in a variety of situations. North Carolina law does not prohibit landlords from refusing to rent because of the tenant's sexual preference. Many leases contain clauses prohibiting the use of the leased premises for "illegal or immoral purposes," and landlords may use this provision as grounds for evicting gay tenants.

Gays may also be subjected to discriminatory practices when applying for credit. Lenders often consider gays to be unstable credit risks. As a result, if a credit check reveals that an applicant is gay, the lender may refuse to extend credit or may charge a higher rate of
