Rosemary Curb to Speak in Greensboro

Rosemary Curb, author of the new book Lesbian Nuns: Breaking Silence will be in Greensboro for the weekend of May 3-5. She will make several speaking and book-signing appearances.

Curb will present an informal talk at the monthly meeting of the Gay Academic Union on May 3 at 8 p.m. at 3010 Monerrey Street. Admission for non-GAU members is $2. A variety of books, including Lesbian Nuns, will be on sale.

On Saturday, May 4, Curb will be signing books at White Rabbit Books, 1833 Spring Garden Street, from 1-3 p.m.

That evening she will speak about her book in the Business and Economics Building Auditorium on the campus of UNC-G. Admission is free and open to the public. Prior to Curb's talk, a variety of books on homosexuality, religion, and feminist spirituality will be available for sale.

Curb's book, Lesbian Nuns, is a compilation of interviews collected from hundreds of nuns across the country. It is a probing insightful study dealing with a little-known slice of American culture: the women in the holy orders.

Rosemary Curb received her Ph.D. in English in 1977 from the University of Arkansas. She has taught in various colleges and schools in New York, Missouri, Arkansas, Nebraska, and Wisconsin. She has participated in numerous conferences on a wide range of subjects from theatre to homosexuality.

Lesbian Nuns is published by Naiad Press of Tallahassee, Florida, a publisher of lesbian and feminist titles. This latest addition to their booklist looks to be an all-time best-seller.

Curb is making appearances on talk shows and in bookstores across the country. For a sneak preview of her lecture in Greensboro, watch her on the "Donahue Show" on April 18.

For more information on Curb's visit to Greensboro, call 919-272-7604.
