"Give me insight into today,"

My world is dark, I grope my way;

I would know the truth, would see the light

And leave the blinding paths of night

To follow on and know the plan

That each day brings anew to man.

I would know myself and what not self,
The true relation, of which the half,
I cannot know, in mortal bound,
But trust to Him, my little round;—
The things I would but yet undone—
In whom the parts are perfected one.
