Page Two

Lo' Co'

Co-Editors and Business Mgrs. Archie Ellis and Stuart Godfrey

Editorial Staff Newby Crowell Bill Shelton Feature Editor Agnes Godfrey

Reporters

George Womble, May Holliday, Margaret Lipscomb and May Bray

> Circulation Manager Iola Lewis

> > Faculty Adviser

B. B. Bray

SCHOOL SPIRIT

Three cheers for the team—Whoop'em up-Snap into it-Here goes-One! two! three!

Now we are off on another season, another year of scholastic endeavor of all types of ex-curricular work. Will we be just another junior college and have thanks at the close of the year that we were lucky and broke even in the year's work? To make Louisburg College what it ought to be there must be more than average energy released, every talent executed by every member of the school. How can this be done?

Realize that when you left high-school you did not suddenly put away the Rah! Rah! spirit and neither did you bury your talent for the sake of fear of college work. Try whooping it up at our games, drop your artificiality and be a child once again anyway we are merely grown up in physique.

Never will school spirit fade so long as the school is happy to possess patrons and a student body that dislike the low standings. The support we give our teams may often to you seem futile, but that guard or half-back knows you are behind him. If you don't believe it, get within their inner circle, then it comes out.

Split Louisburg for the team-

LO' CO'

PURPOSE

The Junior College is no longer an experiment in higher education. During the past decade its place and function have become well defined. In that period the number of Junior Colleges in the United States has increased from fewer than one hundred to more than five hundred.

The Junior College saves thousands of students to the broader fields of higher education, who without that aid would not survive the first two years of college life. It offers a rounded education on the two-year level to other thousands who do not care for or need a four-year course in education.

The spiritual and moral standards of Louisburg College are the result of more than a century of Christian culture. We believe that a highly trained mind which does not possess the poise produced by a religious interpretation of life and nature is mor dangerous than is ignorance to the peace and wel fare of society. We, therefore, emphasize instruction in the spiritual life and the moral consequences that flow from it.

LET'S KEEP THEM THE BEST IN THE STATE

There is not a Junior College in the state whose dormitories are as well equipped or in as good cor dition as those of our own Louisburg College. Ever students new to our school must have remarked upon the great amount of remodeling and repairing which has just been completed. The desire to exce and to have the best is instinctive in all of us (Psychology students note.) We have the best. Let our pride in our school check that carelessness which results in marring the beauty of our schoo whether it be in dormitories, class-rooms or of the campus. LOUISBURG SHALL BE THE BEST

TO EVERY LOUISBURG COLLEGE

MAN

Individual responsibility is the heart of the stu dent government of our school. The present status of self-government of our men's student body did not begin over night, but represents three years of growth and experience. Each year the students have revealed more and more interest and satisfaction Social Note

Several of the outstanding young gentlemen of the freshmen class were the guests of honor at an informal reception in room 108 Wright Building last Friday night. Judges Ellis and Godfrey assisted by numerous members of the upper class were hosts to the party. Black and blue prediminated in the color scheme. More parties are expected as the season progresses.

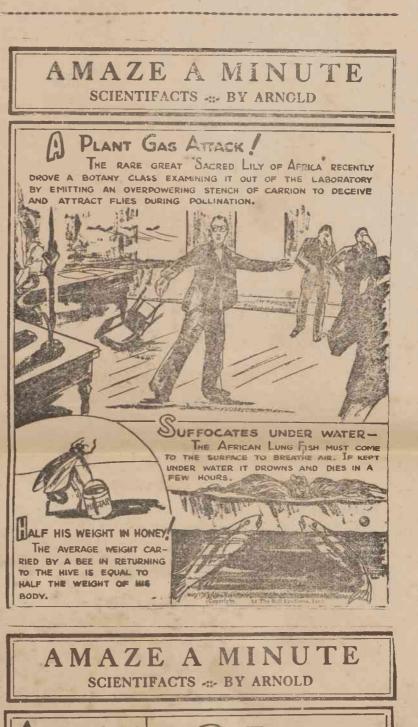

No matter if from heaven above She borrows every grace; No wife can hope for perfect love Who trumps her partner's ace."

Men Have Mass Meeting

The young men of Louisburg College held their first group meeting for the introduction of the students to one a other. After being entertained by the "College Colligians", who played several numbers. President A. D. Wilcox delivered an inspiring talk on, making this the best year in the history of the school. If the spirit shown by the boys is any indication we feel sure that the Doctor's hopes will be realized.

Sept. 26, 1934

That's it—make it sound—

The day was great for we rode through to victory.

SUPPORT THE LO'CO

With this issue of the Lo'Co, Louisburg College is once more taking her place among the leading junior colleges of the state. This is the first year that such a step has been taken by the stduents of this institution and its success or failure rest upon the boys and girls who are enrolled. In order to carry on this work, we must have the support of all students, faculty members and the Administration. It will be necessary for us to charge a small fee for this publication because a town so small as Louisburg does not afford enough advertising to finance the project. We are therefore, asking all the students to cooperate with us and pay the fee that is to be charged for this publication.

In publishing this paper we shall attempt to give you the news of interest that is happening on the campus, and in so doing we will need the aid of all students, and all who are interested in such work are asked to meet with the staff at a date that will be announced later.

This is the student's paper and we want you to aid us in the publishing of it, because no paper can be a success unless it proves to be of interest to the ones who read it.

from this type of administration of the rules of compact student life.

Today Louisburg men are on the threshold of still greater success and growth in self-governmen if their minds and interest will. and I am sure they will, ascribe to the principles of the Honor system and the Campus code. These principles are:

1. Under the Honor System you are on your honor not to cheat steal, or lie; and in case you see another student doing so, you are on your honor to report him to the student council.

2. Under the Campus Code you are bound on your responsibility as a gentleman to conduct yourself as such at all times; and insofar as possible to see that your fellow students do likewise.

The student council, made up of a president and four council members, cannot make a student government a success. It takes the entire student body to serve as an electorate for placing the best men in office, and above all through its individual members to give full expression to the fundamental principles of student government as a Christian gentleman.

The student council is not a group of police-men. Their job is to aid you in upholding and enforcing the standard of conduct and to help keep alive a wholesome student sentiment in regard to the general obligations of campus citizenship,

