

NIXON WINS

By Russ Tolar

Republicans Richard Nixon and Jim Gardner received the most votes in the mock election held here on campus. George Wallace trailed behind Nixon by 63 votes, and Humphrey fell behind Wallace by 54 votes. The two write-in presidential candidates were Pat Paulsen and Eugene McCarthy. The Democratic candidate for governor of North Carolina, Bob Scott, only fell 10 votes behind his Republican rival, Jim Gardner. The final statistics on the presidential election were: Richard Nixon, 141; George Wallace, 78; Hubert Humphrey, 24; Pat Paulsen, 2; Eugene McCarthy, 1. The N. C. governor's race was rather close with Jim Gardner receiving 77 votes and Bob Scott receiving 67 votes.

One interesting comparison in these races was the difference in the way the freshmen, sophomores, and faculty voted. For President the freshmen gave Richard Nixon 75 votes, George Wallace 66 votes, Hubert Humphrey 6 votes, Pat Paulsen 2 votes, and Eugene McCarthy 1 vote. In the same election, the sophomores gave Nixon 58 votes, Humphrey 11, and Wallace 10. The faculty gave Nixon 8, Humphrey 7, and Wallace 2. This difference of opinion was also reflected in the N. C. gubernatorial election. The freshmen endowed Jim Gardner with 54 votes while giving Bob Scott only 27. The sophomores gave Scott 25 votes and gave Gardner 20 votes. The faculty favored Bob Scott with 15 votes while giving Jim Gardner only 3 votes.

On the issue of Vietnam, most of the voters wanted to seek a military victory. Both of the classes seemed to be in agreement on this issue; however, the faculty differed by casting most of its votes for a gradual withdrawal of troops.

The majority of students voted not to recognize Red China, but the faculty members' opinions were quite different because they voted for the recognition of Red China. Also, on the issue of Red China, most of the students voted against admitting Red China into the United Nations, but again the opposite point of view was expressed by the faculty.

The students voted not to extend more foreign aid to Latin America, but once again the faculty disagreed with the students. As for extending aid to communist countries, the freshmen, sophomores, and faculty voted against such a policy. On the topic of National Affairs, the students opposed open housing for all people; the members of the faculty were in favor of it. Everyone agreed that education should receive more federal aid. The students voted to lower the voting age to 18; the faculty was opposed to this change by a margin of 8 to 7. The vote on the drafting system was as follows: voluntary, 97; present, 90; universal, 20; and lottery, 18. The freshmen and the faculty voted more for the present draft system, but sophomores favored a voluntary system. The majority of the voters agreed that the police should be given more power. The voting on Cuba went as follows: present attitude, 153; recognition of Cuba by U.S., 43; and invasion of Cuba, 22.

Concert Tomorrow Night

Louisburg College will have its second concert presented by the Louisburg College Concert Series on November 6. The North Carolina Symphony will present a program of classical and popular music.

The symphony is composed of sixty-five musicians. This year will be their twenty-fourth annual tour of North Carolina. The symphony has traveled 210,000 miles and presented 2,800 concerts. Over one-half of these concerts are free performances for children.

The North Carolina Symphony is directed by Dr. Benjamin F. Swalin. He revealed his love for music by being the youngest member of the Minneapolis Symphony. Dr. Swalin received one of the gold medallion North Carolina awards for 1967. He has studied in New York and Europe. While receiving his Ph.D. from the University of Vienna, he was awarded diplomas in violin and conducting. In addition to this, he is listed in Who's Who in America.

One of the outstanding performers is the piano soloist, Jac McCracken. Mr. McCracken is a twenty-year old student at East Carolina University. He is studying piano with Dr. Robert Carter of the University faculty. He is also the winner of the Crosby Adams Concerto Scholarship.

The North Carolina Symphony will be the first full symphony to appear on the Louisburg College Campus. The concert will be held in the College Auditorium at 8:00 p.m. Students will be admitted with ID cards.
