THE STUDENT VOICE OF LOUISBURG COLLEGE

February 28, 1995

Mixon crowned "Mr. Lou-U"

by Mary Mehalko

Second-year Louisburg student Gus Mixon won the Mr. Lou-U contest, which was held on Thursday, February 16th. This year's contestants were judged on their personalities and hidden talents. These ranged from juggling eggs to bodybuilding exhibitions. At the end of the show each contestant chose a random question to answer. Ricky Kizer was asked to give up his best pick-up line. Mixon selected the question, "Who do you look up to?" He responded with his father, because he had brought himself up to a successful career. All of the contestants were outgoing, but only one could be Mr. Lou-U. Ricky Kizer was named first runner up and Brandon Roberson took second runner-up honors.

Other participants included Donald Barnes, Scott Oringderff, and Tommy Gray. The event is sponsored annually by WAVES.

Second-year student Tommy Gray competes in the Mr. Lou-U contest sponsored by Waves. The event was held February 16.

It's snow trouble at all

Louisburg College cheerleaders Eva Hinson, Christie Rudd, and Jessica Roach enjoy one of our many dustings during the month of February. Will March bring more of the same?

Womens' History Month events planned

March is Womens' History Month and Kenan and Merritt will be celebrating with a spectrum of programs for and about women. The kick off will be a March 13th program on relationships with Lynn Smith from Rape Crisis of Orange County. On Thursdays (16th, 23rd, 30th), films that focus on women will be shown in the Kenan and Merritt lobbies. The finale to the month of celebration will culminate on March 29th with a candlelight vigil commemorating women who have made their mark in history.

Staff and students are invited to submit any information about women in history to Janene Shubrick or Mary Leigh Wallace.
