

Louisburg College

VOICES

THE HILLMAN FIRES OF '95

by Jason Rackley

If you live in Hillman Hall you know about the notorious fires in the trash cans on September 18. I don't know what everyone in Hillman thinks about it all but I'm sick of the damn fires. Being awakened in the middle of the night, being disturbed while trying to study or being disturbed while trying to do other things isn't very pleasant.

There was a previous fire about the same time the previous week in Hillman. The following night we had a meeting outside of Hillman to try to get it all stopped. Residence Director Kevin Bryant was going to enforce a one week Open House suspension on all of Hillman. Everyone talked him out of it by promising him the immature acts wouldn't happen again. It did happen again. Now Hillman has no Open House until October 3. There was another meeting pertaining to these fires on Thursday, September 21 in the Chapel. This meeting was a mandatory meeting called by Dean Krause.

If the meeting with Dean Krause didn't do any good for the immature little kid who continues to set fires, I hope he finally gets tired of doing it. Not only is this "funny little prank" extremely dangerous to the lives of everyone who lives in Hillman, it is annoying, too. Just because the person who does this is a loser and can't get a girl in his room doesn't mean that he has to ruin that privilege for the real men in Hillman. If the guilty person is out there reading this article, respect your dorm and its inhabitants, please. You are in college now, act like it.

Casting Votes

Newly elected Freshman Class President Adam Swinson tries to make a decision during Election Day '95.

Weekend Getaways

by Christian Dixon

Around 40 minutes down the road after leaving the campus parking lot lies beautiful Lake Gaston, where many Louisburg students go for a little R & R on the weekends. Wide open water and serene coves offer plenty of recreational options to water enthusiasts of all ages.

The most popular vessels appear to be Jet-Skis and Ski-Boats; except the senior citizen crowd who appear to prefer the trusty pontoon boat. Skurfing, (or wakeboarding), knee boarding, skiing and tubing are the preferred watersports. No matter your choice, fun is what it's all about.

And what can top off a good time on the water more than a big steak hot off the grill. Yummy! And then, if you're really in the mood for a good time, you can see the man next door with his dog Big Blue - but I guess not everyone has a man next door with a dog.

First Year resident Brandon Hodges takes to the water on a weekend.

photo by Brent Aplin