Homecoming

Absolutely Amazing!

by Lyn Herring
Staff Writer

It all started Friday night. Louisburg College students packed Norris Theater to see comedians. While the audience waited, they were entertained by sophomores "Skeet" Davis, "Fruit Loop," and Freshmen Chuck Brown.

On Saturday, students and Alumni packed Holton Gym to witness the Louisburg Hurricanes stomp Chowan JV's with a score of 93-63. During halftime Melissa Kelly and Kyle Lynch were crowned Queen and King with Nikki Neth and Aaron Seay as first runners up.

The 70's dance was something different. Many students came dressed with their 70's attire. Homecoming brought out the best in everyone. Hats off to Jeff Brewer, Shana Carroll, Anwar Cruter, Ashley Williams, and Stan Zeigler for a job well done.

Dr. King

Remembered

by Shalian Aponte
Staff Writer

Dr. King stood for ideals that were and still are significant and crucial to maintaining mankind: racial tolerance, peace and love for one another. We celebrated his birthday on January 20, as students and faculty alike joined each other in a short ceremony honoring the late Dr. King and his ideals in the Chapel. "Doc" Taylor gave a stirring speech that held the audiences attention. One man walked up to the podium and gave "Doc" a hug. Mr. Stafford also brought to the audiences attention some archives on the death of Dr. King and how Louisburg reacted to it. Dr. King will always be remembered as a significant leader to us all.
