A Call For Service

By The "Columns" Staff

Louisburg College WAVES is sponsoring a Big Brother/Sister program for the students and teachers at Louisburg Elementary School. WAVES, an acronym for Workers Actively Volunteering Energetic Services, felt a need to reach out to the community, as a means to help young students, and to establish a link between Lou-U and the town. Sue Guerrant, WAVES Advisor explains, "This is an excellent opportunity for WAVES to become well-rounded individuals. It is one thing to come to college to study, to live on campus, and to enjoy college-life activities, but to spend an hour or two a week with a young person who needs individualized attention can bring fulfillment and depth to an educational experience. I am delighted that WAVES has chosen this project."

Louisburg College students are paired with teachers who have requested help in their classroom. The teacher coordinates the assistance between the school student and the college student, whether it is reading, writing math, or computer help. Guerrant says, "We have some WAVES members that will be helping several hours a week and then, we have other students who can only give one hour of service. Both are equally important."

Any Louisburg College student not affiliated with WAVES, but would like to be a Big Brother/Sister for Louisburg Elementary School should contact Angela Thompson, WAVES President, or Sue Guerrant, WAVES Advisor. Persons need to have available time between the hours of 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m..

Halloween Plans

By Kiejah Dionne

What are the plans for the students at Lou-U on one of the spookiest holidays of the year? Around campus, students provided some interesting input. "I'm just going to play basketball and chill out," Darryl Todd from Patten Hall mentioned. Spencer Douglas from Hillman Hall said, "I'm going back home to visit my family in Charlotteville." Derrick Bond from Wright Hall and Felicia Gill from Kenan Hall both commented that they plan to go Trick-or-Treating and sleep! Amy Weaver from Merritt Hall said, "Me? I won't be celebrating Halloween because I'll be going to the Women's Soccer Regionals where Louisburg will play against Spartanburg." We all wish our Lady Hurricanes good luck, and everyone have a safe holiday!

Parent's Day

By Becky Kroeger

On Saturday, October 18, 1997, parents gathered in the auditorium on Parent's Day to be welcomed to Louisburg College by its president, Dr. Ronald May, and Jamie Dew, president of SGA. Special music was presented by Dr. Candace Bailey and The Louisburg College Ensemble. Mozart's Ave verum corpus was presented, as well as, And the Father Will Dance by Mark Hayes. Parents and students enjoyed the musical performances.

It was a special day for Tina Haynes' parents. Angela Thompson, president of WAVES, presented Mr. and Mrs. Haynes with the Outstanding Parents Award. Many essays were submitted, but only one could be chosen. If you submitted an essay in your parents' honor, be proud of yourself that you appreciate your parents.

For some students, this was a dreaded day due to unsatisfactory grades, but for others it was a time to brag about their academic accomplishments. Parents talked to faculty and staff to learn about their sons' or daughters' mid-term progress reports. In the afternoon, parents enjoyed a delicious buffet in the Duke Dining Hall. It was a treat for students to eat with their parents.
