2 Black freshmen make cheer squad

Most of the Black students here don't even know David Belton or Mary Rudd but that goes without saying what they are on the campus of the university of North Carolina. David and Mary are the only Black cheerleaders on the U.N.C. cheering squads.

takes a lot of time and could interfere with studying.

When asked what their parents thought of their newly acquired positions, both said their parents approved of it as long as it didn't interfere with their studying.

At the close of the interview, David said, "There are Black athletes to cheer for, thus, we should relate to them."

David and Mary are both freshmen who are now representatives of the Black student body of U.N.C., whether you know it or not. They tried-out for the positions and made them, even though David confesses that it wasn't his intentions when he accompanied some friends along to the practices.

When asked why they went out, Mary replied, "because I like to cheer," but David had a little more to say. He said that he couldn't relate to the white cheers, and that by being on the squad and by teaching the white cheerleaders some black cheers and by incorporating these cheers, he might be able to get more black participation in cheering at the upcoming games. David urges more Black participation in cheering at the upcoming games. David urges more Black participation in try-outs because if making either squad you go from school to school showing that U.N.C. must be a pretty good school and that by being seen on the squads you are indirectly recruiting more students.

Presents Black

Life at UNC

by Burnes Ray

The Black Sounds radio program is a cultural program geared to all black students on the campus. It consists not only of music, but of many things such as poetry by the Brother Rap, interviews with Miss BSM, and other things that the black population on campus is interested in.

There is a news service by which any black organization or any black person can give notice of information which may be helpful and interesting to other black students on the campus. The show is staffed by four disc jockeys - Earnest Addams, Blaine Mack, Willie Mebane, and Columbus Motley. There are two news announcers, Deryl Davis and Robert Willis. Cleophus Crowder assists in producing and Burnes Ray co-ordinates the whole production. The show is one of those things that everyone is invited to participate in. The programs are on twice a week, Tuesdays and Fridays from seven p.m. to nine p.m.

Coming up for Black Sounds Radio are interviews with the black athletes concerning their feelings on black turn-outs at games and their opinions as to how they as athletes fit in as blacks on campus and the effect that they have.

Some say David and Mary are just "tokens," but they both feel that they are just as qualified as any other cheerleader on the squad. When asked if they were going out for the varsity squad next year, both replied "yes," if their grades are good because cheerleading

Conceptual Revolution

Like the deltas of mountain rapids,
Old revolutions have seen days
When their ways
Were raging, rapid currents;
A roaring discourse
Which displayed their force
As a stern and earnest deterrent.

But rivers inherently erode their ferocity
Into a calm and stagnant docility.
And so it is with old leaders -
Those once mighty bloods
Whose demanding and fearful pleas
Are now but ripples in immense seas.

Conception is our guarantee of revolution.
Again, it's called Black Gold.

And at night the fight goes on . . .
As boss brothers and sisters
Get down in bed
With no ideas in their heads
That they are creating the leaders of tomorrow -
"Dashiki wearing rip-offs"
Possessing the vigor and means
To disrupt this racist land at its seams.

Rocking on remote porches
As we trip off Geritol,
We view what grew
From our reproductive dew
And concede
"Frightening crop this year"
As we smile.
