

An evening of entertainment, relaxation

From a rousing rendition of Phoebe Snow's "No Regrets" by Sandra Banks (upper left) to a show-stealing performance of Natalie Cole's "I've Got Love On My Mind" by the Eighth of James (upper right) to the hilarious evils of marijuana as purported by Spurgeon Fields (lower right) to a touching version of Quincy Jones' "What Good is a Song?" by Avis Squires, Philip Woods, Sharon Wellington, and Sam Tucker, we were all quite thoroughly convinced at the First Annual BSM Talent Show that we have been, are, and shall ever be "Young, Gifted, and Black."

Staff photos by
James Parker