"COUNT YOUR BLESSINGS"

Yes, this is just another sermon on how grateful you should be for your opportunities at Gardner Webb. But it's called for. Have you noticed the complaints about having to study so hard and being lonesome on weekends, besides scores of small things that are too insignificant to mention. And, as all of these types of sermons go, just look at what other people have. Well, let's-- In Hungary there is much alarm over the rumor that the Nazis plan to make their schools teutonic, and well they might be. In Japan they had a nationwide bayonet exercise sponsored by the Students' Athletic Association. A trophy was given to the winner by Premier Tojo "to encourage the spirit of students under war time". In North China, there are only about 500 schools, the others have been removed to the interior for military reasons: A sad footnote to this is that Japanese is the language taught in North China's schools. Also in China, there are plans underway by the Japanese motion picture industry to show in the Chinese films the rise of the Chinese puppet government. The picture in Vichy, France is even darker. Students are being placed in four categories, according to their physique with mental qualifications aside issue.

And, as all such sermons end, can't you be glad that you can study what you want to, or can be lonesome sometimes in a nice environment like this.

AND SO THE SIX WEEKS ENDED

"I'm Sorry I can't go but I made a "D" on my report card." My isn't she a conscientious young lady I hear you say. Well-not exactly-you see all young ladies who made a "D" are not supposed to be "gallavating" around during the week.(Maybe not in the same words, but thats what the Dean of Women said). I dare say that some of you are thinking this d does't need such special attention in the paper but the ones who saw thier hopes of next weeks movie vanish in this air think it's about the most important thing that has happened on this campus lately. But just between us it's a pretty good idea isn't it girls? You might have thought in high school that a "D" was passing but at G.W. they don't give one sixth of a quality point for it. "I Dare You" to work a little harder and get that "D" off of there this six weeks.
