

W. A. A PARTY

On Thursday evening the Council of the Woman's Athletic Association of Gardner-Webb College entertained in the dining hall with a party complimenting the members of the association.

Guests were greeted at the door by the president and were presented with a booklet containing general information concerning the organization. Then they were directed to the refreshment table which was covered with an unusual lace table cloth (tennis net). The center piece was an artistically arranged bouquet of badminton rackets, baseball bats, hockey sticks, tennis rackets and archery arrows, fifty black and red W. A. A. pennants adorned this arrangement. On either side of the table were triple candelabra (red bricks holding red and black candles).

Smaller tables throughout the dining room were centered with unique arrangements of assorted sports equipment and the guests enjoyed a coup of cocoa, assorted cakes, served from tennis racket trays, and nuts, served from ball glove cups. Those serving were the W. A. A. council members who were attired in various sports costumes. Music was provided during the refreshment period.

Miss Margaret Roberts of Shelby, president of the W. A. A., welcomed the group. In turn, functions of the organization were discussed by the council.

After a word from the sponsor, Miss Dorothy Smith, lights were lowered and blankets were spread around a make-belief camp fire, the setting for the singing of familiar melodies.

WHAT MAKES THE WORLD OVER?

Some soldiers came crawling into a Y. M. C. A. hut one day during the World War. Half the squad had been killed; very soon there were loving hands giving them hot coffee; and the padre was there doing his best; it was difficult in those days to say anything.

And the padre, for the sake of saying something said, "Never mind, boys, you are making a new world."

And one of the soldiers looked up and said, "No, padre, we are not doing that. That's your business. We are smashing up the old." There was something tremendous in that. Those poor chaps knew that they were smashing up the old world, but they were looking to the padre of the church to build up the new world.—Watchman-Examiner.

Groom: "Dear, do you think you can cook as mother used to?"

Bride: "Sure I can; but the question is whether you can put up with indigestion as father used to."

If you encountered no difficulties, the office boy could take your place.—Forbes.

Reception Honoring Miss Fuller—Following the voice recital of Miss Betsy Jane Fuller, on November 10, a reception was given in her honor in the faculty parlors of the Curtis-Huggins Hall. In the receiving line were Mr. J. T. Jones, Jr., Miss Frances Cuthbertson, Miss Betsy Jane Fuller, Mrs. Claude F. Fuller, Miss Abbie Miller, Mr. W. Lawson Allen, Mrs. Allen, and Miss Dorothy Smith. Mrs. James Harris presided at the punch bowl and served punch and cookies to a large group including the faculty, students, and friends.

Physical Education

In recent years people have come to realize that it is most important that the college shall look after the health of the students, because success both in the college and throughout life depends throughout life depends largely on health. Special attention is being given to the health conditions of students at Gardner-Webb College. Doctors and nurses from the County Health Board have visited the college and have examined every student. Medical inspection has two purposes; first, discover physical defects, and, second, arrange for correction, thus preventing diseases and future health failure. School work proceeds more successfully because there is a saving of time that might otherwise be lost on account of sickness and the students are able to do better work because they are in better health.

In our physical education program of the college we are stressing individual improvement. In each class every girl has certain exercises that will help her individually. She may be exercising for a smaller waistline or a stronger back, but whatever she has in mind her exercises are improving her physically.

Under the direction of our efficient physical education leader, Miss Dorothy Smith, emphasis has been placed upon the importance of posture. We have learned that good posture is essential to good health. Pictures were made of all students so that they could see for themselves how they appear to other people. By being "posture conscious" we will improve our appearance as well as health.

To keep ourselves in physical fitness for the tasks that are to be discharged while in college, we have had, and will have further, sports such as are played on all college campuses. Various tournaments are conducted such as: Volley ball, basketball, and tennis.

"Where is the paper plate I gave you under your pie?" asked the bride.

"Was that a plate?" inquired the groom anxiously. "I thought it was the lower crust."

Smith had heard a conundrum that he thought was very good, so when he arrived home he concluded to try it on his wife.

"Do you know why I am like a mule?" he asked.

"No, I don't," replied the wife, "but I've often intended to ask you."

Wedding Off

Maudie—"No, Henry, I can't marry you. I don't think a manicurist should ever marry a dentist."

Henry—"Heavens, why not?"

Maudie—"Because if we didn't get along well, all our friends would say we fought tooth and nail."

"To what do you attribute your remarkable age and your wonderful health?" asked the summer boarder of the aged farmer.

"Wal," answered the bucolic one, "I reckon I got a pretty good start on most people by bein' born afore perms was discovered, an' so I have had less to worry about."

We are now engaged in the horseshoe tournament. In the near future will come volley ball and basketball tournaments and other sports in which all students are urged to participate.

Every girl has two hours each week of supervised exercise given by Miss Smith. During this time we get the benefit of a well-planned program of physical fitness. Programs like this have been proven successful throughout the nation, in that the students have made great gains physically as well as mentally. The physical education program at Gardner-Webb College aims to develop strong bodies through physical activities, develop certain attitudes toward physical education and particularly toward play, and develop a high standard of conduct in our program. Health and physical education is concerned with habits, skills, appreciations and knowledge quite as much as with exercise.

CHURCH SCHOOL RELATIONSHIP

Gardner-Webb College is extending its ministry to the churches of this section. In June, W. Lawson Allen came to the college as director of church-school relationships. His chief duty is to promote a friendly atmosphere among the churches and to extend the service of the college to the last church that needs and wants it. The college trustees and faculty feel that the college has a definite responsibility to the church because it is from them that the financial support of current expenses is coming now and must continue to come. The college has little endowment and wants no sum set aside to be invested as an endowment. It is the earnest desire of the college that it may be worthy in an increasing ministry to the churches of this section and in that way command the respect and win the support from them. The college trustee endowment far more complete and worthwhile than any amount of money collected and set aside for use as an endowment.

The word has repeatedly gone out from the college in the last few months that the college wants to do of great service to the people who need our help and call on us for it. This does not mean that the college wants to do of great service to the people who need our help and call on us for it. This does not mean that the college wants to do of great service to the people who need our help and call on us for it. This does not mean that the college wants to do of great service to the people who need our help and call on us for it.

The director of church school relationships has visited and spoken in twenty-nine churches in four associations, attended four general association meetings (three for two days each), attended the Baptist Student Union Convention and the Baptist State Convention, supervised and acted as time-keeper and paymaster of the building of the faculty duplex, and has taught three study courses in churches for a week each. In addition to all these duties, he teaches religious education and English and has given much time to counseling among the students and others who come from day to day.
