B. S. U. Retreat

we adjourned to the main auditorium to hear Mrs. Owen Herring, formerly, associate Southwide Student Secretary, speak on "Master's Minority Movement". She made us realize how big our world is, and just what we can do for Christ, as students.

On Saturday morning at 7:15 we walked through the beautiful campus to the Forest Theatre for morning watch. God was so near to us out there in the open with walls of trees around us. Two students from E. C. T. C., and Mars Hill, gave us personal testimonies of what God had meant to their lives.

At 9:15 we returned to the church for more miniatures in contrast and the election of the new state officers. We were all thrilled when Florence Gordon, student at W. C. U. N. C., was elected president. After this we went into group conferences to discuss problems of B. S. U. and to receive help on how to carry on next year.

On Saturday afternoon we enjoyed a worship concert where we heard some of our greatest composers play some of our best religious compositions. After this, Bobby Barns from Mars Hill told us of the Student Evangelistic week on their campus; Judith Richards from A. S. T. C., spoke on Volunteer Summer Service; Ann Johns told of Focus Week at Wake Forest and Evelyn Straughan gave us the mission work at Meredith. These were all inspirational.

On Saturday night we witnessed the installation of the new state officers. We knew that God's presence was in that service as these young people accepted their challenges for work next year. After a worship program led by Rev. Richard T. Howerton, we went back to the lower auditorium for a social with the theme, "Beginner's Art Begins", led by Elizabeth Shelton from Meredith. This was lots of fun and as our colors blended we were able to get acquainted with many students.

When Sunday morning came we were glad that we could return to G.-W. to share with you the experiences we had had, but were reluctant to leave. After Sunday school, which was in form of a panel discussion led by Mr. Howerton and various students, we heard a very inspiring message on Vitalizing a Vocation given by Dr. Kelly Barnett, pastor of the Baptist church in Chapel Hill.

Those attending the retreat from G.-W. were Louise Martin, Dorothy Franklin, Mrs. W. M. Dameron, Martha Connor, Myrtle Whitaker, Martha Lynn, and Marjorie White.

More About The Summer School

ity can be continued through the six weeks of the summer school. At a small extra cost horseback riding and riding lessons may be arranged. Students not familiar with mountain hiking should plan at least one trip into the mountains while here.

Although we have not yet employed a music teacher, if as many as eight or ten pupils apply for work in piano or violin, such courses will be provided and will carry the usual credit hours for work done in these subjects.

Address applications, inquiries and requests for summer school bulletins to Summer School Director, Gardner-Webb College, Boiling Springs, N. C.

No Pilot For July, August

With the June issue, the Pilot suspends publication for the months of July and August. If you have enjoyed this paper, will you not continue to support it? We are planning many improvements for next year. For one thing, we hope to have each month some articles of interest to the churches in helping to forward the work of the Sunday school, Training Union, W. M. U., and the general work of the Kingdom.

Suggestions will receive careful attention by the new staff. The help of the readers of the Pilot will be appreciated in making the paper worthwhile to all the subscribers and friends. The subscription price is carried on the second page. Parents are interested in the doings of the college campus which is home to one of their children. We want to keep you informed as to the happenings, items of interest, and the spicy news that comes from time to time.

The former students of Gardner-Webb College, Boiling Springs Junior College or Boiling Springs High School are urged to contribute articles, and news at any time. Not only do we want to hear of you but from you. We are interested in following your career during the remaining college days or into the business and professional fields into which you go. If you are not willing to give us information about yourself, let us have information about some other person that you know who attended the school.

It is very readily seen that we want to make the Pilot one of the very best college periodicals in all the country—something of which to be proud. We will be satisfied with nothing less.

We don't have to wait until next year to see results of her visit. But, we know that next year we will look back with thankful hearts that Miss Toole came. We feel as if our B. S. U. council will be a great success; because they will have such a good start. She had even gone so far as to help map out the calendar of events for the council to use next year.

We owe our deepest appreciation and thanks to Miss Toole for giving us such a helpful visit.

W. LAWSON ALLEN

The Pilot would not have been successful this year without the capable management and guidance of this well-rounded individual. His tolerance coupled with his wit and humor makes him an ideal person to work with.

Mr. Allen teaches Religious Education and is director of Religious Activity and is also director of Student Activities. He has studied at the University of Tennessee and at Western Carolina Teachers College, where he received a B. S. degree. He has also studied at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, from which place he came here.

We, the staff of this year, express our heartfelt thanks to Mr. Allen for his help and co-operation on the publications of this year, and we think the staff of next year is very fortunate indeed to have such a perfect sponsor, even though he does have a habit of condemning some articles with a large red "trite"!

MISS TOOLE INSTRUCTS B. S. U.

Miss Marjorie Toole, student secretary at Appalachian State Teachers College, visited Gardner-Webb campus. She came to instruct the new B. S. U. council members for their work of next year. She held a conference with each new council member individually. In this conference, she told them what would be expected of them in their special task. The information proved very helpful, for she is a very capable and likeable person.

Miss Toole graduated from a senior college in Florida, after which she entered the seminary at Louisville, Kentucky, where she finished her graduate work as a major in Religious Education.

We feel very fortunate to have had such a person as Miss Toole on our campus. A study course was also given for the new council members.
