

GARDNER-WEBB COLLEGE IS NOW ON THE AIR!

Gardner-Webb College is on the air! This sentence is uttered every Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The program originates in the Higgins Memorial Communications Center on the Gardner-Webb campus.

College students, professors, and local talent appear on the program. The programs are planned in advance to give the participants maximum time for adequate preparation. The programs are well planned because they, for one reason, have to be regulated on split-second timing.

The programs last for fifteen minutes and are broadcast through the facilities of radio stations WOHG in Shelby, WBBG in Forest City, and WKMT in Kings Mountain.

Right after the sign in, Mr. Robert Carr plays the Alma Mater. He is then cut out or faded out by the announcer Jimmy Sides, who gives an explanation of the program.

What goes on behind the scenes during a broadcast is really an experience for the engineer. He is constantly modulating voices, cutting certain microphones off and others on, and announcing the program as it progresses. This may sound like work, but it is really a most enjoyable experience.

As the program nears the fifteen minute mark, there is a tightening of nervous systems. Everyone realizes that the program has to sign off before the fifteen minutes are over, or there is no sign-off. Mr. Carr usually has time to play one stanza of the Alma Mater before the announcer fades him out and says, "This broadcast has originated on the Gardner-Webb Campus, John Roberts is director and your announcer is Jimmy Sides. This is the Voice of Gardner-Webb College, a pioneer of education in the New South."

And then there was the Chicago flood hat fall; another case of a river that got too big for its bridges.

Bill Stevens: For Eastern North Carolina; that's where Willow Springs is.

Ira Smith: For my cheerleader sweats.

Kay Swain: For Scotty, the first talent show last year and '54-'55 basketball season.

Scotty Frizzell: Kay, Ace and Doby.

Geneva: Host.

Carlyle Hestetter: Geneva.

Corkie: Satisfied mind, and new Dietician.

Al Proctor: For getting a Christian education instead of just an average one and Cordie.

Cordie Hardin: Thankful for Payne, my roomie, and for being so very happy at Gardner-Webb.

Bill Carlton: For having a class ring to give to Phyllis.

Kitty Logan: For everything a talent, Bill, and a love for averting.

Joyce Stephenson: I'm thankful for my home, school and church, for young Christian friends, and especially the one at High Point College.

THE POET'S PENCIL

TO A FLEA

By David Littlejohn

Hail to thee, oh little flea
Who has such a place in history
From the time of the Greeks till present day,
I guess you're with us always to stay.

I believe it was the dog who first carried the flea
Oh accursed dog, Now I have them on me,
But on with my story and with truth you see,
A dog could never do without his flea.

They crawl, they bite, they roam about,
And you can watch the dog as he digs them out,
As he scratches, he fights, and mauls
How he howls, he barks and bawls.

He can do all he can, and may it be his best
But he can never get rid of this sly little pest,
Yes, to see a dog without his flea
Is something I hope will never be.

Now the moral of this little ditty you see,
That every dog must have his flea,
But - - -
Don't look for a moral in every story.

Bloodmobile Visits Boiling Springs

The Monogram Club sponsored the last visit of the bloodmobile to Boiling Springs.

Gardner-Webb students were hosted by talks given in chapel by Harold Long, Sara Farrow and Mrs. Roland Leath of Shelby. As usual the students responded wholeheartedly by sending permission slips home to be signed by parents and then making their visit to the unit.

Many thanks to the donors of this most precious liquid substance called blood. Let's all be on the next time the Mobile makes a visit and really support this worthwhile program.

"If all the women were taken out of circulation," the orator asked, "what kind of a nation would this be?"

At this point a young man in the back row shouted: "Stagnation!"

THE RESULTS

The building of the Great Sphinx
... the constructing of Noah's Ark ... the painting of Mona Lisa by Michelangelo ... the sculpturing of a statue by Leonardo da Vinci ... the writing of the constitution ... the inventing of the light bulb ... the molding of bread into its required shape ... the reaping of the golden grain in the late fall ... the saving of a child frightened by the destructive flames of fire ... the completing of a wife's beautiful quilt, well, not to be unadorned by the husband ... the composing of a song, played on the piano ... are all results of man's most remarkable tools—his hands.
