

New Faces About The Place

The campus has been buzzing with talk about the new girls in Stroup, the handsome boys in Decker and Hays and in general, all of our new students.

It is a pleasure to welcome all the new students that have come to Gardner-Webb. We hope you will join in and feel right at home at all times. Now for the benefit of you who do not know them—here is a list of our new students.

AND WE'RE GLAD TO SEE SANDY BACK!

What's In A Name?

Does anyone want to debate the question of whether a rose would smell as sweet if called a thistle?

Do you realize that Gardner-Webb can boast of only one Jones, Miss Doris Jones, on its faculty? How does it happen that there is only one Jones and all the other duplicates among faculty members?

If you are speaking of an Allen, you will have to explain which Allen you are talking about. You may have in mind Dr. Gariand H. Allen, acting chairman of the Department of Religion. But again, you could be thinking of Leonard A. Allen, superintendent of buildings and grounds.

To take away from the confusion caused by duplicate names among the faculty and staff, you must always indicate whether you mean Lansford Jolley, chairman of the Social Science Department or the mathematician from Shelby, Paul W. Jolley. Now that night classes have begun, there's Lansford Jolley's wife Coenia, teaching English in night school.

It may be that the Gardner-Webb administration becomes so fond of a member of the staff that it just takes a vacancy. So it isn't an accident that Deck W. Andrews drives from Charlotte each day to serve as chairman of the Vocational Arts Department. His brother, Charles S. Andrews, has been driving from Forest City to look after the Language Department since 1960.

Coach Norman Harris has been on the faculty for a number of years but this fall his wife Jane became an instructor in the business education department. To increase the popularity of the Harris name on the campus, Thomas M. Harris left his beloved Nashville, Tennessee, to join the English staff.

Then there are the Dixons. You'll find Hubert C. Dixon in the first office in the science building where he looks after his duties as chairman of the Natural Science and Mathematics Department. His wife Lucille works all the way across the campus in the Webb building as assistant to the registrar.

While M. A. Moseley, Jr., is looking after his chemistry students, in the science building, his wife Emily is administering or grading tests for guidance director, Donald Moore, in the Gardner building.

This is not all; there is more. The director of guidance answers to the name of Donald D. Moore and the instructor in Latin is Prince G. Moore, who commutes three days a week from Forest City.

Strange as it seems the only Hamrick found in this year's faculty directory is Mrs. Dorothy Washburn Hamrick. Yet the Shelby telephone directory devotes more columns to the name than to any other.

What's in a name? If you still believe that a rose by any other name would smell as sweet, don't read work at Gardner-Webb College, the right name could mean everything. You shouldn't have any difficulty getting the job with the popular name Harris. And in all probability Gardner-Webb would like another faculty member with the scholarly sounding name of Dedmond.

Christian Volunteer Band Holds Revival

The Christian Volunteer Band recently conducted revival services at Berryhill Baptist Church in Charlotte, the services being preceded by personal visitation to prospective church members by some of the Gardner-Webb students. The results of the services were considered Band and of the Berryhill Baptist. Realizing the importance of such services in the lives of church members, the Band plans to hold in the near future similar services in churches located within the immediate vicinity of the college. Also, two week-end revivals are in the planning stage—one in Boone and one in Winston-Salem. Members of the group feel that participating in these services greatly strengthens the spiritual lives of those who take part in them. In what better way can Christian students carry out the Great Commission of their Lord and Saviour?

What Is Time?

Time — what is time?
 Yes, what is time when I know
 That I will see you again?
 Ah, it matters not when I
 So long as I know, it will be again.
 Time — what is time?
 What? that eternal wall of separation.
 The wall that lies between our meetings.
 Yet, that same wall will be
 The path that brings you back to me.
 Time — what is time?
