BOILING SPRINGS, N. C.

Fu Accreditation A Reality At G-W

Gardner-Webb College is now a fully accredited senior college in North Carolina following approval by the North Carolina Association of Colleges and Universities.

The school received notice by telephone that the group had accepted the recommendations of a committee appointed to investigate the new four-year college. This committee visited the campus talked with faculty members, students, staff members of the administration before making their recommendation to the full association meeting yesterday and today in Winston-Salem.

Dr. E. Eugene Poston was very pleased when notified of the action of the state association.

"I naturally feel very proud of our school and I know that this will be welcome news to our students and friends," said Dr. Poston. "It is wonderful to have an accredited four year

A Million Dollars In Campaign Funds

BOILING SPRINGS, N.C.... The one million dollar mark has been passed in the Gardner-Webb College fund campaign. R. Patrick Spangler, Jr., national chairman of the college's $1,500,000 capital fund campaign, made the announcement. "We are very pleased with our progress to this point," said Spangler. "The workers have done a good job, the trustees and advisors have been a great help, and physically the administration has put forth a great effort," said Spangler. "With all working together I have no doubt that we shall reach the goal which we have set."

The drive began last Spring with a grant kick-off dinner attended by more than 600 workers and friends of the college. The Board of Trustees and the Board of Advisors were the first to give to the campaign. These two groups gave more than $800,000 toward the goal. Next came the faculty, staff and administration which gave more than $81,000. This was almost three times as much as this same group gave in the school's last campaign five years ago. This was considered a shot in the arm for the campaign since these were the people who truly understood the college's needs. Right now the campaign is in the process of going out into the surrounding areas. Before the campaign is closed eleven areas will have individual campaigns.

New Catalogue In

By the time this issue of the Pilot is published you should have received your copy of the 1971-72 catalogue. Its delivery was delayed by a strike at the bindery.

Although its content may appear to have been changed little at first glance, some significant changes have been made. Each student should look it over carefully, paying particular attention to those sections which most affect him. This catalogue is not only the successor of the first four-year catalogue, but is in some instances a correction of that first edition.

Some degree requirements have been re-written in the hope they may be more clearly stated. Prospective teachers should check their programs very carefully. State requirements for teacher certification have been made public since the first catalogue was prepared, and corrective changes have been made.

Members of the freshman, sophomore, and junior classes will be held responsible for the course requirements and the major course of study of their choice as they stated in the catalogue. Some exceptions and substitutions have been granted to seniors because they have had only two years to complete all requirements, even concessions will not be made in the future.

All students should study pages 47 and 48. These pages set out retention standards which will become effective in the fall of 1971. In the past, continuing enrollment at Gardner-Webb has depended upon the number of hours passed. Next fall, continuing enrollment will depend upon the quality of the student's overall record and his record for the spring semester.

The college catalogue is binding upon the administration, the faculty, and each student. Its statements are more authoritative than the directions of a faculty adviser, and announcement in the Scroll, or a wide-spread rumor among the student body. Each student should rely on his catalogue and "Think for himself" as he maps out his future semester at Gardner-Webb.

Oratorio Concert

The Oratorio Concert which was originally planned for December 6th has been re-scheduled for December 10th at 7:30 p.m. It will be presented by the combined efforts of the members of the Gardner-Webb Chorus and Chorus and the Hickory Symphony Orchestra. Soloists will be Miss Nettie Cidney, Susan Wilson, and Gerald Hamilton.

Bright's "Vision of Isaiah" will be performed by the Ensemble and the Chorus will present "Hear My Prayer" by Mendelssohn.

The public is invited to the concert which will be given at the Boiling Springs Church.

senior college in Cleveland County."

Dr. Poston said the committee was very impressed with the physical facilities when it visited the campus and after talking with many students, expressed satisfaction with what the students had to say about the college.

"Another thing that seemed to impress the committee was the apparent ability of the college to raise money," continued Dr. Poston. "Many schools are having it rough and the fact that we are doing so well in our campaign to raise $1,500,000 impressed this committee. They interpreted this to mean that the people who knew of the college were impressed enough to give money."

Dr. Poston said the attitude and educational attainment of the faculty was also praised by the committee. The fact that the school has more than one third of its faculty members holding doctor's degrees impressed the visiting committee.

Week Set Aside In Spring For Communication

February 4-12, 1971, will be Christian Emphasis Week at Gardner-Webb. This year it will present a new dimension: self-discovery through communication. The entire week will be built around the Reuel Howe's theory that if one really communicates, he comes to know himself and the other person in a deeper and more meaningful way.

On the 11th and 12th all classes will be suspended and students will participate in one of the 25 group meetings led by clinically trained counselors. To get a cross section of the college and a diversity of personality, a list of participants for each group will be chosen at random and published in advance. No group will contain more than forty people.

The purpose of this week is to gain better understanding between black and white students, professional and liberal arts, conservatives and liberals, and the enthusiastic Christian and non-religiously oriented Christian. Since only students and leaders from outside the college family will be involved, students will have an unusual opportunity to come together and rap out true feelings.

A deep appreciation goes to the Thomas F. Staley Foundation in New York City whose generous contributions have made this week possible.

Student Nurse Honors

Miss Sharon Diane Glynn of Kings Mountain, N.C., has been selected by her fellow nursing students as "Miss Student Nurse" of Gardner-Webb College. Sharon, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Glynn, is a freshman at Gardner-Webb. The "Miss Student Nurse" contest is national in scope. Each individual school of nursing selects a contestant to represent their campus. These girls then compete in district competition and later in state competition. At the end of the year the state winners take part in the national contest for the title of "Miss Student Nurse U.S.A."

This fall Sharon will compete in District 2 of the N. C. Student Nurse Association which includes the schools of nursing at Lenoir Rhyne, Western Piedmont, Gaston Memorial Hospital and Gardner-Webb College.

Candidates for "Miss Student Nurse" must be rising seniors in the nursing program and exceptional academically and clinically competent. They are required to write an essay on the subject "The Prevention of Aging in Nursing." Then they are interviewed by a panel consisting of a faculty member from the nursing department, a doctor, and an impartial person. This interview is to determine if they understand the major problems in nursing education today and to see if they are truly committed to nursing.

Sharon came to Gardner-Webb from South States High School where she maintained an "A" average throughout her high school career.

Registration News

The Spring Semester will begin with registration on January 7 and classes will resume on January 11, 1971. There will be no pre-registration and all students will register in the Lower Memorial Library on their assigned day.

Individual guidance is provided for each student by a faculty advisor. Every student is assigned to an advisor on the basis of his academic and vocational interests. Dr. Dan Proctor, the Director of Guidance and Counseling, urges all students to find out who their advisor is, and to confer with them concerning problems or questions involving schedules or academic requirements.

The Student Advisor List is posted in the downstairs of Charles L. Dover Campus Center. Any student who has a question or whose name is not listed should go to room 102 in the CID. It is the student's responsibility to schedule a conference with his advisor, and to plan ahead for the next semester and subsequent years.

Students can also obtain a copy of the new Gardner-Webb Catalogue for 1971-72, which outlines a course of study for each student.

Yearbook Deadline

December 1 is the deadline for picking up the 1970 Anchor, according to the Office of Promotion where the books are being distributed. Students from last year should bring their ID cards and pick up the annual as soon as possible.

"We want to get these books out as soon as possible," said Mr. Bill Boyd, faculty advisor. "We need the room and students who are entitled to the books should come by before December 1."

Bloodmobile Set For December 2

The Bloodmobile will be at Gardner-Webb on Wednesday, December 2. A representative from the Red Cross will be in the Ballroom Room in the Charles L. Dover Building from 10:00 A.M. to 3:45 P.M. The bloodmobile comes once a year and their purpose according to a representative from the Shelby County Red Cross, is "to give every person the opportunity to help themselves and others." Their goal this year is 200 donors and 200 pints of blood.

Each donor is given blood credit which makes blood available to the donor's family for any emergency during the subsequent six months. Some uses of the blood and its components are in blood diseases, surgery, hemorrhage, anemia, shock, and liver and kidney diseases. Also, the blood is available for further research in the uses of blood and blood products.

All blood donors must be 21 through 60 years old a minor, with written consent of parents or guardian. Donors must weigh at least 110 pounds and may give every 8-10 weeks but not more than 5 times a year. The average person has about twelve pints of blood and usually donors feel no ill effects. The body makes new blood constantly and will replace the unit you've given within a few days.
