Logan — Holiday Queen

Miss Kathy Logan was elected by the students of Gardner-Webb to reign as Holiday Tournament Queen at the Gardner-Webb Holiday Tournament, December 27-28. Her attendants, Lantia Wright and Debbie Burns complete the court. The election was sponsored by the Bulldog Club. Kathy and her court appeared in the Shelby

Christmas parade December 2, and will appear in other area Christmas parades. Kathy will throw out the game ball at the tournament and present the trophies. Hailing from Shelby, Kathy is a junior at G.W. Lantia, also from Shelby, is a sophomore, and Debbie is a freshman from Kings Mountain.

G-W Receives Accreditation

Gardner-Webb College has received four-year senior college accreditation from the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges. The action was taken at the association's annual meeting in Miami on December 1. Dr. E. Eugene Poston and Thomas J. McGraw were in Miami when the announcement of accreditation was made. The students were gathered together at 10:30 a.m. on December 1 in the gymnasium and the announcement was formally made. Mr. Bill Boyd, director of public relations, made the announcement to the student body and played a recording of his telephone conversation with Dr. Poston. "I am grateful to God that our dream has been fulfilled, an accredited senior colleges with a Christian atmosphere," said Dr. Poston after the announcement was made. "It was a genuine thrill for us for several reasons. First, because of the students—I did not want one single student to have a degree from a non-accredited senior college; second, the faculty, staff and administration have worked hard and sacrificed for this day; third, the trustees, advisors and associates have gone all out to help the college reach accreditation; fourth, the workers and contributors for the past two campaigns have put forth a great effort for this day; fifth, the Baptists of North Carolina have supported the college in a marvelous way; sixth, the entire area around the college has encouraged and supported us in this program for an accredited senior college; and seventh, Mr. McGraw for his outstanding leadership in the academic program after taking the job at the illness of Dr. Thurman Lewis." Dr. Poston added that, "this is the beginning of a new era at Gardner-Webb. Our greatest task of excellent quality is ahead of us and we still need the help of all of our friends." McGraw stated that "now that this is here I believe that we shall be a college which will continue to upgrade its program and continue to be a college where the most important thing we have is the student. The next few years will be decisive ones for all of us as new innovations are introduced in the field of higher education." Gardner-Webb received approval in the fall of 1969 from the North Carolina Board of Higher Education when the third year program was instituted to grant a four year degree.

The Religious Education Club is planning publication of a student directory. Such directories are popular items on many college campuses. They are a welcome convenience when one is attempting to locate a fellow student or any other member of the college community. Included in the directory will be an alphabetical list of the school address, post office box, and telephone number of each student, along with similar information on faculty members and administrators. This service will be rendered as a money-making project for the Religious Education club and as a service to the college. The purchase price for the directory will be reasonable, under one dollar per copy.

There is a new political machine on campus called the Young Republicans. John Chandler, a senior at Gardner-Webb, received a charter from the state organization, the North Carolina Federation of College Republicans. The party on campus was formed under this charter. They are concerned with who is elected as the republican candidate for the presidency. Chandler feels that the party will serve as a catalyst to inform the 18 year-olds and the college students of the importance of a two party system.

Since North Carolina and South Carolina are basically democratic, Chandler feels there is a need for more republican representation to assure a definite two party system. The recent act by Congress which lowered the voting age to 18 assures the college student a voice in political elections, if he becomes an active participant. The Young Republican party offers the interested student at Gardner-Webb a chance to become actively involved. Any student who desires to join or who would like to receive any additional information contact John Taylor who is serving as secretary. Other party officers include Chandler as president, Ken Jarvis as vice-president, and Harvey Jarvis as treasurer. A Gardner-Webb College student, Sidney Martin, Jr., of Asheville, was one of four students who visited the office of Lt. Governor Pat Taylor as the state proclaimed November 6-12 as "Student Nurse Week in North Carolina." Martin is a nursing student at Gardner-Webb and chairman of the recruitment committee of the Student Nurse Association of North Carolina which annually sponsors the week.

Others who attended the meeting with Martin were: Lynn Hough, Lenoir Rhyne College; Brenda Jackson, state president from Fayetteville State and Donna Corbin, also from Fayetteville. Student Nurse Week was sponsored by a state workshop held by the student group in High Point. The theme for the year is "Nursing—1980."

Gardner-Webb's nursing students were recently involved in a research project. The Sophomore class participated in a study of hypertension sponsored by a leading pharmaceutical company.

Under the guidance of Dr. Joseph Walker, a local physician, the students obtained and recorded the blood pressures and pulses of some 60 persons. Readings were taken in the prone position, immediately upon standing, and every minute thereafter for a total of ten minutes. Data sheets were forwarded by Dr. Walker to the research center where computers will compile the results.

The entire study entailed thousands of persons, ranging in age from 16 to 90. Findings will be obtained in reports by Dr. Walker as soon as the information is available. Sophomores earned $110.00 for their class by participating in the project. Sharon Gwyn is President of the participating Sophomore class.

Who's Who At G-W

Twenty-five seniors at Gardner-Webb College have been named to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Students were chosen for their participation in campus activities and academic standing, and were voted on by the faculty and administration. The complete list of students is as follows: Jeff Cranford, Mrs. Sue Rash, Mrs. Jackie McSwain, Shirley Young, Kathy Daves, Nancy Magill, Teresa Jackson, Karen Hardin, Pat Hooper, Joel Jenkins, Carolyn Santanella, Mrs. Debbie Webb, Jill Sanders, Mel Campos, Fagg Nowlan, Mike Shook, Susan Wilson, Suzi Connor, Cyndy Lemmons, Phil Swanson, Percy Bumgarner, Charlie Griffin, Dickie Sherrill, Judy Smith, and Charles Wilson. A list of all seniors with a quality point ratio of at least 2.5 was computed and circulated among the faculty and administration for a vote. The results were tabulated and the twenty-five students with the highest number of votes were selected. Campus nominating committees consider the student's scholarship, his participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, his citizenship and service to the school and his promise of future usefulness.

At The College

Mr. Bill Boyd plays the recording of Dr. Poston's announcement program including Gardner-Webb a fully accredited senior college. Five-hundred students attended the rally held in the gymnasium on December 1.

At The Airport

Wives, staff members and students met Mr. McGraw and Dr. Poston as they returned to Douglas Airport.
