Atlanta Trip Gives Students New Insight About Missions

Forty-two students led by professor Robert Trexler and Dr. Bob Lamb recently enjoyed a tour of Atlanta, Georgia. The group—too large to all fit into the Bulldog bus—quizzed the overflow number into a VW bus driven by Mr. Chip Carter.

The first stop was at the Southern Baptist Home Mission Board which they toured from bottom to top. While there they met Bill and Carol Blessing, US-2 workers at the Aurora House, a Christian ministry on Atlanta's drug strip. They also met Rev. David Beal who coordinates the work of the Atlanta Baptist Association in Christian Ministries. Mr. Beal then led in a tour of the Clark Howell-Techwood Center which ministers to people living in a low rent neighborhood just south of Georgia Tech. Union Baptist Church was the next stop, and the students were so impressed with the pastor, Rev. James Wilborn, Sr., that they wished the trip were a day longer so they could attend the worship service there. Learning of the church's eight choirs caused them to be even more deeply impressed that a worship service in that congregation would be quite an experience.

Members of the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist Church served as hosts providing overnight accommodations for everyone on the tour. Many provided tours of the city which included points of interest such as downtown Atlanta, underground Atlanta, and the new governor's mansion. On Saturday morning six of the eight ministers on the staff of Second-Ponce de Leon Church shared with the group what it was like to work with a four thousand member church whose total yearly budget is approximately one million dollars. Before starting the tour, the group stopped by the county juvenile court and heard Chaplain Henry Crowe talk about his work with youth and family services. Meeting in the courtroom itself and knowing that youthful offenders were being detained just around the corner added urgent reality to the presentation.

Student enthusiasm for the trip ran high. James Hobermicht said, "In the brief period of the trip, I have personally been made aware of the organized efforts to meet the needs of certain people or groups. My own interests to the needs of others have been aroused." Steve Sells said, "This trip was very meaningful to me, because I never knew enough about missions to really care. Now I can have a concern and love for missions because I could see the Love of God at work." Leland Keith said, "I know that I have returned with better insight and more determination to carry out 'Christ's Mission' wherever I might be." Mary Wells said, "Our trip to Atlanta was a real blessing to me. I truly appreciate people who feel there is more to learning than the classroom and then does something about it."

Bulldog Painter

Ed Williams has been a tremendous asset in promoting the "Bulldog Spirit" at Gardner-Webb during the last four years. He is the man responsible for the numerous signs, emblems, and billboards that have been painted to increase spirit at the college.

Williams has had over thirty-eight years of experience in painting signs. He began painting while a student in high school and continued this talent as he was employed by the Coca Cola and Daniel Construction Companies as sign painters. He was also a battalion sign painter while in the army.

Williams takes great pride in his work. He commented: "All of my work is done by hand; no mechanical process is used in the painting. This may take longer, but it gives the paintings that special individual touch."

The "Bulldog Painter" enjoys his work because it makes him feel he is part of the college.

"Only One Regret"

Mrs. Elizabeth Feilsburg is the new Residence Hall Director at Decker Dorm. She was born in Columbia, South Carolina. She has two sons, one married and the other one is to be married this December. She collects stamps and old coins. Her favorite activity is fishing. Mrs. Feilsburg attended Columbia Commercial Business College. She worked as youth director for her church for about ten years. This is the main reason she decided to do this type of work. She was Residence Hall Director at Western Carolina for three years. After leaving Western she was a bookkeeper for a short period of time. Then she accepted the position as Residence Hall Director at Gardner-Webb.

She said she loved the girls and the way she was included with the faculty. She has only one regret, she misses her little dog she left behind.

G - W Students Exempt Courses

The College-Level Examination Program is being utilized by a rapidly growing number of our students. This program is designed to validate college-level learning which has taken place in a non-collegiate environment. The guidelines to these have been published in the college catalog. They have been altered by the Educational Policy Committee to eliminate the ceiling on hours credit allowable from the program.

The General Examinations consist of five tests yielding six semester hours each, and two of these may allow half credit, three semester hours for subcores. This credit may apply to the Basic Course Requirements or Free Electives.

Credit for the English segment is equivalent to English 101 and 102 and the Mathematics section is equated with Mathematics 111 and 112. The Natural Science Test covers both the biological and physical sciences. There are no equivalent courses, but these six hours credit will satisfy the Basic Course Requirements in Natural Science if the student's major permits. The two required hours remaining will be made up of free electives.

The Humanities is divided into two sections, Fine Arts and the latter is a Free Elective. The fifth examination is subdivided into Social Science and History. Neither of these is equated with any of our courses but either or both may apply to the Basic Course Requirement in Social Science if the student's major permits.

The Subject Examinations may apply to any part of the student's course of study. These are the ones that are currently available: American Government, American History, American Literature, Analysis and Interpretation of Literature, Biology, College Algebra, College Algebra-Trigonometry, Computers and Data Processing, Educational Psychology, Elementary Computer Programming - Fortran IV, English Composition, English Literature, General Chemistry, General Psychology, Geology, History of American Education, Human Growth and Development, Introduction of Business Management, Introductory Accounting, Introductory Business Law, Introductory Calculus, Introductory Economics, Introductory Marketing, Introductory Sociology, Money and Banking, Statistics, Teas-and Measurements, Trigonometry, and Western Civilization.

There are certain regulations concerning the inspection of these CLEP examinations. These are:

1. All CLEP examinations are confidential. The test booklets supplied to CLEP centers for the exclusive use of fully registered candidates. CLEP center administrators are not authorized under any circumstances to permit inspection by anyone of CLEP examinations.
2. It is CLEP policy to permit Presidents, Deans, Directors of Testing or Department Chairmen of colleges and universities to inspect College-Level Examinations provided certain procedures designed to protect the security of the tests are followed. Requests to inspect them should be referred to CLEP Program Director, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey.
3. Under certain circumstances representatives of business and industry may arrange to inspect College-Level Examinations. Such requests should be referred to the CLEB regional office in your region.
4. Substantial information as to the nature of College-Level Examinations is contained in two descriptive booklets, one concerned with the General Examinations and the other with the Subject Examinations. These booklets are readily available at no charge. Therefore these booklets should be used freely to respond to any inquiry about the nature of College-Level Examinations.

Twenty-five Gardner-Webb students have received credit from this College-Level Examination program. One student even received up to 30 hours credit through this means.

Man Behind The Gavel

Burt Skinner is the 1972-73 SGA Vice-President and serves as Chairman of the Senate. He is a senior majoring in religion. He was born on October 5, 1951 in Newport News, Virginia. In high school he was manager of the basketball team. His freshman year, he went to Virginia Polytechnic Institute and then as a political science major transferred to Gardner-Webb.

Some of his interests include golf and antiques and refinishing old furniture. In fact his life long dream has been to restore an old house. He is married to Patsy B. Skinner who is a 1972 graduate of Gardner-Webb.

Burt enjoys working with people and has served as a youth director of Bethel Baptist Church in Tabb, Virginia. He is very much involved and interested in student government work and makes a plus for more student participation. "As Gardner-Webb continues to grow out of its small town, small time thinking, the student government needs more and more intelligent and industrious workers."
