President's Column

With the hectic schedule of a student body president I sometimes overlook the good things that motivate me and keep my morale up. For our office has been unmercifully let down by numerous students when we asked them to serve and when we desperately needed assistance.

With the election of student class officers and senators our office was once again bogged down with the tedious task of vote counting. Many jobs in student government go unnoticed and vote counting is definitely one of them. Students as students usually do, came to the rescue. Randy Jones, Mark Walker, Russ Hoene and Tom Hill volunteered themselves and sacrificed an evening to student government. They did not have to, in fact none are members of any executive committee of student government. They helped because they are just great guys and wanted to lend a helping hand. This type is what keeps Gardner-Webb student government alive. These men are straight shooters. They are not two faced and they do not hide behind false images. They are sincere and they tell the truth. They know how to enjoy life.

If Gardner-Webb was supplied each year with gentlemen of this caliber, our student government would be a driving force on this campus. These are the type men that our office is looking for, and for what it is worth we sincerely appreciate their efforts.

From the office of the President, I thank them for just being themselves.

Senate

The Senate of Gardner-Webb College has met three times thus far this year, with Steve White, vice president of the SGA, presiding. Mr. Barry Hambricht and Mr. Joe Hoyle are the advisors this year along with Dr. Arthur Nuhrah serving as parliamentarian.

The Senate meets every second and fourth Monday of each month at 8:00 p. m. in 113 C1D, The Student Government Association room. There are thirty-six senators representing the student body. These students are in the Senate to serve and represent the school at all times.

Each time the Senate meets, all students are invited to attend. This is a good way for the student body, or at least those who are concerned, to find out what is going on around the campus as far as governmental issues are concerned.

There is hope that many things can be changed or at least improved by the Senate. But they need full cooperation and understanding from the student body.

As editor of the Pilot, I see and hear a great many complaints concerning what is being done about this particular item or that specific code. As college students, we should be mature enough to know that before we speak, know all the facts. Get all you can concerning your subject; make sure that what you say is true.

Graduation

ATTENTION all December graduates. You must turn your application now. In order for Mrs. Wylie to order your cap and gown, she must have this necessary piece of paper. She urges you to turn them in as soon as possible.

Graduation services will be held in the Best Physical Education Building on December 15, at 10:00.

The campus code is the official code of conduct adopted by Gardner-Webb students and trustees. The code prohibits dishonesty, theft, immorality, drinking or possession of alcoholic beverages, use or possession of drugs, hazing, unkept appearance and failure to follow official dress code, rioting, inebriated behavior, and possession or use of firearms.

Violations of the campus code result in disciplinary action and can subject a student to suspension. The student judicial body has the original jurisdiction over all cases involving infraction of the rules and regulations passed by the student Senate and over interpretations of the SGA Constitution and by-laws. Most important of all, the judicial body will render decisions concerning campus code violations.

The chief justice, J. C. Cole was elected as an executive officer by a student body vote and SGA President Jeff McNeill appointed the eight justices. Serving this year: Joyce Smith, Randy Jones, Nancy Barlow, Valerie Dupont, Sam Miller, Ron Wood, Chuck Scoville, Larry Diaz, Joy Harpe — Clerk of Court, Rick Dixon — Prosecutor, Robert Lingerfelt — Defense, Michael R. Wagner — Defense, Robert Yavner — Defense counsel.

All students have certain rights which we need to be aware of. They are included in the SGA Constitution and Bylaws, Article IX, section C. Some of these include due process of law and certain procedural safeguards that every student is guaranteed. Any student must be informed in writing of the charge before his case is heard. This notice must explicitly set forth the charges as well as the specific ground or grounds which, if proven would justify the penalty under the lawful regulations. The notice must also give the names of the witnesses who will testify against him and the facts to which each witness testifies.

Also, a student must be informed orally or in writing of his procedural rights as set forth in the Bylaws of the Constitution. This explanation must be given before any consideration of waiver hearing or of issuing formal charges.

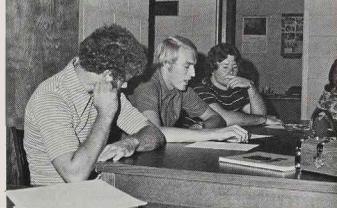

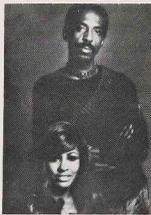

All students have the right to be represented by counsel of his choice, and if the defendant does not wish to defend himself the judicial body involved shall appoint a defense counsel.

After the due process of law is followed the violation so campus regulations is subject to certain sanctions.

The first sanction is admonition, which is an oral statement to the student offender that he has violated college rules.

A warning is a notice to the student orally or in writing, that continuation or repetition of the conduct found wrongful, within a period of time stated in the warning, may be cause for more severe disciplinary action.

The third sanction is censure, which is a written reprimand for violation of specified regulations, including a warning of more severe disciplinary action in the event of conviction of the violation of any college regulation within a period of time stated in the letter or reprimand. Censure and the remaining sanctions are communicated to parents or guardians.
