

Editorial

Here we go again! New and old faces, lines coming and going, papers to fill out—all the hassles and enjoyments of the beginning of second semester.

To all of those who have registered themselves "lock, stock, and barrel" to this institution, I hope you know what you're doing! Seriously, I would like to say that it is great you are here. This college is new years; it belongs to you. For some of you it is the first time, you have a fresh start; a clean slate to begin with, a new life, a different way of living. It is up to you upon what you do with it and how you do it. Make it the best.

For those of us who are returning, welcome back. We have a "second chance" as Rev. Buddy Freeman, college minister, said in a Wednesday night prayer meeting. We can do those things that were not done last semester and learn from the mistakes we made. (That is, if there were any made!)

A special thanks and recognition is now given to Ann Crump, chairman of orientation and to the entire committee for the magnificent job that they did. (You can especially thank Rick Walters and Bob Lindeman for your pictures on your ID cards, new students.) It's students such as those who you saw behind desks that become your friends and want you to be theirs, also.

As said many times on different occasions, the PILOT is the college newspaper put out by students for anyone who is interested in it. You are welcome at any time to visit the publication room which is located on the top floor of the building, Room 112. Help is needed on the staff and your ability to write, type, interview, draw, or anything will be greatly appreciated and used.

FALL REVIVAL

Dr.
John
Drakeford

Mrs.
Robina
Drakeford

February 11-15 has been chosen as Christian Emphasis Week this year on Gardner-Webb campus. Dr. John Drakeford from Texas will be our guest speaker. He is the Professor of Psychology and Counseling at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary at Fort Worth, Texas.

His wife, Robina, will be accompanying him. She was born in Scotland and raised in Australia. She has been in the United States eighteen years. Both Dr. and Mrs. Drakeford will be speaking to the student body. Mrs. Drakeford will lead an Experiential Bible Study on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings at 9:00 p.m. Thirty is the maximum number for this group, so students will be asked to register. The place is the Building Room in the gymnasium.

Dr. Drakeford's chapel topics are as follows:
The Developing Love Life
Why Sexual Morality?

Whither Family Life?
Farewell to the Lonely Crowd
The Awesome Power of the Listening Ear
Dr. Drakeford has received five degrees and is the author of sixteen books. One of these books is used as a textbook here at GWC, Psychology in Search of a Soul.

Pre-Emphasis Week

On Tuesday morning, February 5, which is the week before REW, Rev. Ed Kilbourne, founder of Spirit Incorporated, a group of artists who use their art in Christian witness, will be the "pre-emphasis week" folk singer. Others groups will be those affiliated with the following: the Folk with Faith, Re-Generation, Chorus, and Ensemble.

Handbook Contest

The SGA Handbook Committee announces the following guidelines for the Handbook Cover Design Contest for the 1974-1975 edition:

1. The competition is open to all Gardner-Webb students.
2. The design is to be submitted on 8 1/2 by 11 inch paper to the SGA office and accompanied by the following information: Name, home address, school address, and classification. The number of entries per student is unlimited.
3. The entries shall be judged on the basis of originality, creativity, spirit, and the over-all appeal of the design.
4. A $25 prize will be awarded to the winner.

A deadline date will be announced at a later time.

The Handbook Committee chairman is Charlotte Meyer with Jill Yarborough Bennett and Donna Pressley as members.

Celebrity On Campus

Many people shy away from becoming involved with problems of other people. Danny Cook of Boone does not shy away and for his efforts is receiving national recognition.

Cook, a freshman at Gardner-Webb College, has been saddened by the heartbreak that birth defects bring to a family since his elementary school days when he first became aware of the problem. As a sixth grader Cook became involved with the March of Dimes and since then has become a youth leader in the organization.

During his junior and senior years in high school he served as the Blue Ridge council chairman for six counties in Western North Carolina. The summer of 1973 he was appointed as the Western North Carolina chairman over the March of Dimes' Teen Action Program (TAP) and College Action Program (CAP).

As the Western North Carolina youth chairman, Cook attended the "The March of Dimes Convention in Boulder, Colorado" this past summer where the trend in his national recognition began. While at the convention, he and Tammy Martin, a delegate from Louisiana, sang a song which he had written about Kathy Garver, the national youth chairman, for the March of Dimes.

Miss Garver, better known as Sissy on the television program, Family Affair, had served the organization for six years. Cook physically sang the song in two days. He was asked to write another song.

Recently the organization adopted a new youth symbol. It was felt by the national leaders that a theme song was needed to amplify the meaning of the March of Dimes symbol. Cook was contacted by Mrs. Louise Roy, the director of youth activities for the national foundation, to compose a theme song for the national organization.

Cook wrote "Moving Mountains" which has been adopted nationally as the March of Dimes youth theme song.

Nationally has many responsibilities in the national organization. He helps coordinate youth programs for the state. He makes appearances throughout the state speaking to civic organizations and schools on the role of the March of Dimes.

Despite a heavy academic load at Gardner-Webb, Cook wants to work with high schools in the area and let them know about the March of Dimes. He also hopes to hold a symposium on the March of Dimes at Gardner-Webb.

He spoke recently on the organization's activities to a statewide youth symposium.

"The March of Dimes is an educational and fund raising organization that works to combat birth defects," said Cook. "The March of Dimes serves the public by providing funds for research, professional medical services, provides professional education and public health education, and offers valuable community services. Now that polio has almost been eliminated the efforts of the organization are aimed toward birth defects."

"After seeing kids mentally and physically defective and seeing what the March of Dimes was doing to combat this I wanted to become more involved. The more I saw the more I wanted to. I hope to take these problems the center of my life's work."

Faculty Member In Spotlight

"I now declare you all American citizens because that was the word that I used on Wednesday, November 7, a red letter day in the life of the family of a former officer in the Nationalist Chinese Army. Chih-Fu Chang, a mathematics professor at Gardner-Webb College, along with his wife and three children received their citizenship papers in Asheville.

The trip to citizenship for the Changs began when Professor Chang, then Captain Chang, was an officer in the Nationalist Chinese Army of Chang Kai Shek. Professor Chang fled the on-rushing Communist for Taiwan in 1949 where he stayed 10 years before coming to America.

Professor Chang arrived in America to stay in 1961 and in August of 1967 his family joined him in Boiling Springs. With all of the Chang family on American soil the first hurdle was crossed by applying for permanent residence.

Finally, after living in America for the required five years and taking numerous tests, their long journey ended when they were declared American citizens by Federal Judge Woodrow Jones, in the U.S. District Court for the Western District of North Carolina. Judge Jones, a member of Gardner-Webb College's Board of Trustees, congratulated the Changs following the court's decision.

"Freedom is a word not to be taken lightly," said Professor Chang. "Once you have it from the other side of freedom then you can really appreciate it. I sometimes feel that too many Americans take the freedom they have for granted."

Most immigrants upon arriving in America settle in the big cities but the Changs wanted a more peaceful, settled environment. Professor Chang believes that Cleveland County and Gardner-Webb College are the best places for his family's deep appreciation for America.

"You've heard the saying 'America love it or leave it' well, we love it and never want to leave it. We thank God that we are now American citizens."
