

Gardner-Webb University
The Pilot

Heidi Gardner, Nikol McKinney, and
Michael Owens
Co-Editors

Dr. June Hobbs
Advisor

Matt Norman
Sports Editor

Staff

Sunny Benton, Karen Brower, Matt Elliot
Tyniese Goudelock, Janet Jones
Julianne Kuykendall, Aubrey Moore

It's time to act your age!

A Letter to the Editor

I am writing out of concern for some of our students. It is obvious that most of the "young adults" on our campus have exemplified above average scholarship or they would not have been accepted to this fine institution. However, my concern is that students who have this much knowledge do not know how to flush a toilet or pick up a piece of trash.

I am amazed that young men haven't been taught by their mamas how to flush the commode. It doesn't take any extra time or energy to pull that little handle at the top of a toilet.

Also, there is an abundance of trash lying around campus. The University has gone to the trouble to purchase trash cans and place them around campus for the purpose of collecting trash. It is not difficult to place a piece of paper in one of these.

Gardner-Webb, it is time to stop acting like you were raised in a barn. Take some responsibility and grow up. Your mama is not here to pick up after you. So act like young adults and practice coordinating movements; flush and throw.

Thank you,
Shane A. Kirby
GWU Junior

You might win free books!

A dollar spent could be $250 earned at GWU. Once again, the Student Alumni Council is sponsoring the Great Books Giveaway. Through the month of November, SAC ambassadors will be soliciting $1 donations from students, faculty, and parents. Each $1 donation earns a chance to win $250 credit for books in the GWU bookstore. The drawing will take place on December 7.

Students take part in accreditation process (Continued from page 1)

participation in the self-study. Junior Joy McKibben, who also served on a self-study committee, worked for Camp and Gregg, assisting in compiling and proofing the report. McKibben felt that working on this project has helped her develop "good relationships with the faculty and administration." Working with her was junior Heather Lookadoo, who felt that the interaction between students, teachers, and staff has been beneficial. The process has "allowed me to see them in a different light and establish friendships with them," said Lookadoo.

On November 13-16, a committee from the Southern Association will be at GWU to review the self-study and see the institution "first hand." This committee is comprised of faculty and staff members from various institutions within the Southern Association. They will represent a variety of schools and states, except North Carolina. Bonner feels that because this is a process conducted by peers that it is more beneficial than one conducted by the federal government.

Prior to their coming, the visiting committee members will have read the nearly 300 page self-study. While here, they will meet and discuss the self-study with selected students, faculty, and staff. The committee may also stop students in passing to get their impressions of the institution. Bonner suggests then that students should be aware of the committee's presence during that week and should not be surprised to be approached by a person wearing a nametag identifying him or her with the Southern Association.

Before the committee leaves on the 16th, it will conduct an out-briefing. During this time, it will provide its preliminary impressions of GWU's self-study. Once completed, the committee will send a preliminary report to the institution, to be reviewed for factual errors. Upon finalization, the report is sent to the Southern Association as well as to GWU. Once GWU's response is complete, it will be sent, along with the committee report to the Criteria and Reports Committee of the Southern Association. It make a recommendation to an executive committee, which finally makes the reaffirmation decision. This process should be complete in June of 1996.

Distinguished artists coming

by Janet Jones
staff writer

Gardner-Webb's Fine Arts Department announces the second Distinguished Artist Series for this year, performers Akal Dev Sharonne on flute, and Brian Bailey on harpsichord. The artists will be performing on Thursday, November 2, at 8 p.m. in Dover Chapel.

Akal Dev Sharonne graduated from the New England Conservatory with highest honors. She was the winner of the Arlington Philharmonic Young Artists Competition, and the New England Conservatory "Night at Pops" competition. She is a member of North Carolina's Visiting Artist Program. Sharonne has taught at Williams College, the University of Rhode Island and Appalachian State University.

Brian Bailey is on the faculty of the School of Music at Appalachian State University in Boone, NC. He is a graduate of Augustana College and the Eastman School of Music and is currently completing doctoral studies at Indiana University. Bailey joined recorder virtuoso Eva Legene and members of the Russian early music group "Pro Anima" for performances in Holland, Lithuania, and St. Petersburg, Russia.

All are welcome to attend the concert. Admission is free.

WANTED!!!

Individuals, Student Organizations to Promote SPRING BREAK.
Earn MONEY and
FREE TRIPS
CALL
INTER-CAMPUS
PROGRAMS

1-800-327-6013
<http://www.icpt.com>

If you would like to submit an editorial for publication in The Pilot, mail your typed story to Nikol McKinney (Box 5480) and remember the following guidelines: The Pilot's policy for letters to the Editor requires that all letters be signed by the author(s). Names may be withheld only with consent of the Editorial Board. The Pilot also reserves the right not to publish articles which are defamatory in nature, and reserves the right to edit letters for brevity and clarity. Views expressed in editorials are not necessarily those of The Pilot.