

THE PILOT

GARDNER-WEBB UNIVERSITY

December 5, 2007

Volume 11 No. 7

Serving the Gardner-Webb University community for more than 60 years

Merry Christmas!

The Pilot staff wishes you a happy holiday season

This Edition

— In campus news —

David Johnson provided students a personal view of the genocide in Darfur. See page 2.

Find out what your classmates are doing for Christmas. See page 2.

A rash of fire alarms send Stroup Hall residents out into the cold. See page 2.

— Opinion/editorial —

Editor Rebecca Clark discusses the genocide in Darfur. See page 3.

Jacob Conley talks about events that have moved him to tears. See page 3.

Christopher Shaver advises what not to get friends and family for Christmas. Page 3.

— In sports —

Radford handed GWU its first home-court loss of the season. Page 2.

Coach Shipman is very optimistic about the wrestling season. See page 2.

Weather

Today	Thursday
Dec. 5	Dec. 6
58/30	53/29
Partly cloudy	Mostly sunny

Source:
Weather
Channel

Index

News	page 2
Op/Ed	page 3
Sports	page 2
Photo	page 4

Cartee's 10th the best concert yet

Folks had to be turned away from the Carl Cartee Christmas concert Saturday in the Dover Theater.

"It's a very good problem to have," said Noel Manning, director of University and Media Relations.

Manning said he is amazed that the event, which benefits local people served by the Salvation Army, hasn't lost steam in the decade that it has been taking place. In fact, it's picking up steam. "The outpouring of support amazes me every year. People are coming to have fun, but they are also coming to give to something grander."

About 100 people had to be turned away, which meant that all 555 seats in the theater were filled. Some people were able to watch from the lobby, through the open doors, Manning said.

There's no word yet from the Salvation Army office about the amount of food and gifts collected before the show. Manning said that typically there are more than 1,000 pounds of food and more than 100 toys donated.

Plans are already in the works for next year's show, which will be Dec. 6.

Above: Carl Cartee sings with children. Below, left: Cartee and wife, Heather. Below: Fine Arts professor Susan Carlisle Bell paints as Cartee sings.

Photos by Jessica Jones

