

Spring Break

photo by: Haley Black

For spring break every year many student travel to different places. Sometimes those places are considered home while other student go overseas for mission trips, and still others go to a traditional spot of the beach. Students have time to visit friends and family, and some, like good students, catch up on their school work.

Above: After a long day in New York City, Rachel Slack attempts to catch some shut-eye on the train back home.

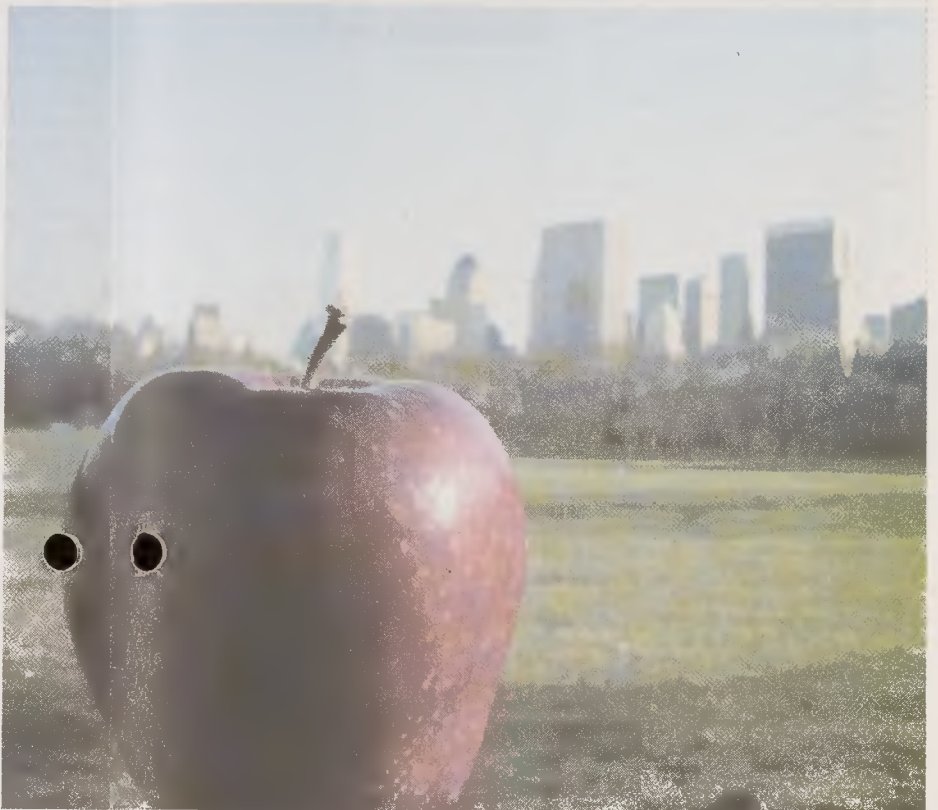

photo by: Haley Black

Above Right: A Big Apple in the foreground shows the symbolic depiction of New York City's nickname. The apple was in Central Park.

Below: Rachel Slack sits on a rock under a tree in Central Park. Slack enjoys the view of the city.

photo by: Haley Black

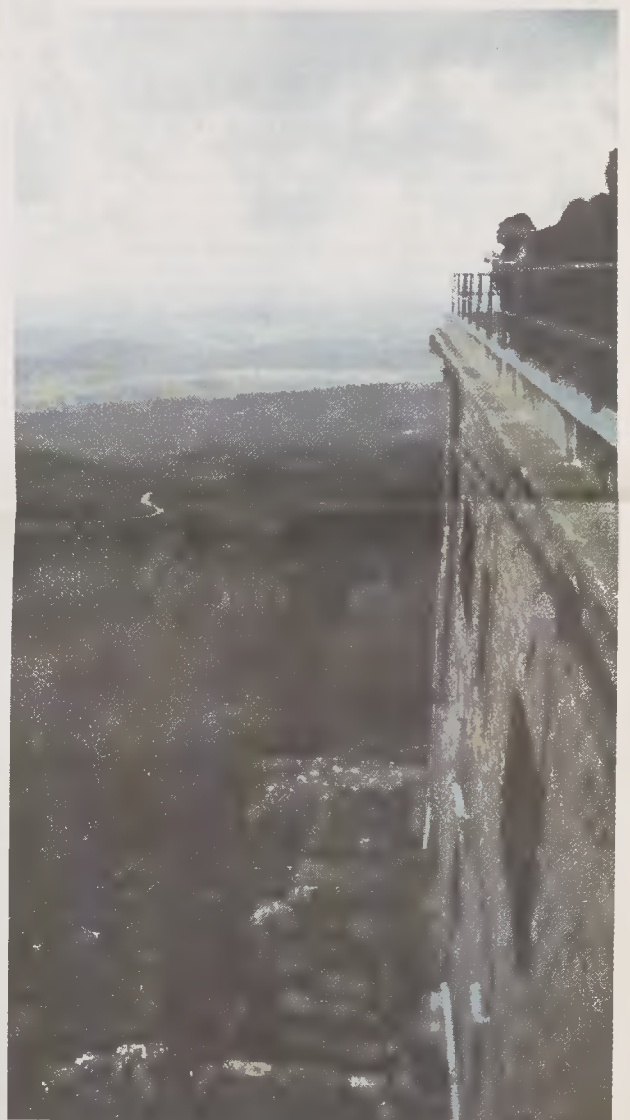

photo by: Jessica Jones

photo by: Jessica Jones

Above: One of Gardner-Webb's mission trips was to Israel. While there the students had the opportunity to visit the biblical site of Mt. Carmel. The students were able to look over the vastness of the land. They visited many different holy sites on their trip.

Left: Groups from all over the world come to visit Jerusalem, the old City of David, which is considered a holy site by many. One of Gardner-Webb's mission groups sits on the stairs next to the temple walls.