Georgia Southern baseball program cuts four after incident

"Unspecified" infraction also brings twelve suspensions

Associated Press

STATESBORO, Ga. - The Georgia Southern baseball team has dismissed four players, including its leading hitter, for an unspecified rules infraction and said 12 others would face suspensions of four games each.

Second baseman Jody Pollock, third baseman Ryan Peterson, outfielder Scott Burks and pitcher Rhett Roberts were all released from the team on Tuesday.

Pollock, a senior, was the team's leading returning hitter. He finished last year with a .387 batting average, 11 home runs and 83 RBIs.

Both Peterson, also a senior who hit .284 with one homer and 29 RBI, and Pollock started all 58 games for the Eagles last year.

Burks, a junior reserve outfielder, saw little action in 1999, appearing in 14 games and appearing four times at the plate, with no hits and one run scored. Roberts, a sophomore, also had a sparing role in 1999, with only four appearances and a 12.27 ERA.

A news release from the school said several players were involved in a similar incident during the 1998 season and were issued a departmental reprimand at the time which outlined the potential severity of future penalties.
