Scott Shaffer, who plays Kenickie said that as an actor "you have to have fun, even in a serious presentation, or the audience won't have any fun."

One of the most amusing scenes in "Grease" takes place during the song "Beauty School Dropout," which is sung by a teen angel who advises Frenchy to go back to high school. As the music starts, the angel, played by John Strickland, appears in the side balcony dressed in a silver metallic suit and a disheveled wig, Frankie Avalon style. The curtain on the stage rises to reveal a similarly dressed chorus wearing wigs and curlers and singing into plastic combs.

In addition to the wonderful performance of the two main characters, played by Cammack and Loren Mash (Sandy Dumbrowski), the other cast members who make up the Burger Palace Boys and the Pink Ladies add a great deal to the show. These actors include Nathan Cochrane as Doody, Meagan Joliffe as Betty Rizzo, Ryan Lausterer as Roger, Chet McCullen as Sonny LaTierri, Scott Shaffer as Kenickie, Lara Smith as Marty, Erin Sullivan as Frenchy and Courtney Wright as Jan.

The cast really pulled the show together, especially considering that Sullivan joined the cast just two weeks before opening night because Lauren Goldberg, who was originally cast as Frenchy, became ill. Sullivan, who planned to work backstage, was notified of the role change because she had just played the role of Frenchy in Laney High School's production of "Grease" before she graduated.

Sullivan said that playing Frenchy in the Thalian Hall Production "has been very stressful, but a great learning experience."

"Grease" continues to run at Thalian Hall every weekend until Sept. 3 and it is highly recommended for those who just enjoy the theater or those who someday hope to become a Pink Lady or Burger Palace Boy.

NON-SURGICAL VISION CORRECTION ONLY $999 (For BOTH eyes)

Ortho-Vision is a non-surgical alternative to LASIK laser surgery at only a fraction of the cost! Just as an orthodontist uses braces to realign crooked teeth, we use specially designed vision retainers to gently reshape the front surface of the eye (cornea) to eliminate or reduce near-sightedness (myopia) or astigmatism. Unlike laser surgery, this procedure is great for kids as well as adults, and perhaps most importantly, Ortho-Vision is reversible, laser surgery is not. Call our office today for a FREE consultation. This special pricing is only for a limited time.
