Scahawk

"Excellence Through Truth and Dedication" Since 1948

LYNDSEY M. BLAND - Managing Edite ASHLEY DELPH - Advertising Director SARAH VAN SCHAGEN - Lifestyles Editor KATIE BLANCHARD -Special Sections Editor BEN JONES - Sports Editor JAMES FLINT - Photo Editor KEVIN KNIGHT - Adviser

BILL DINOME - Student Media Coordinator

and Editors: Sports - Jessee Nuncey Staff Weiters: Was Melvelle, Kate Trapp, Bradley Hutchess, Erica Harbetkin, Todd Thomas, Auber Bringaries, Gabe Herman (Graphics) Copy Editors: Tammy Cauchili Layout/Production: Lisa Williams, Associal Agarwal, Jensica Smith Advertising Staff: Kim Byrd, Caroline Coupino, Nick King, April Thomas, Bill Shipman, There's Levichester. Distribution: Josh Willia, Jef

The Seatand is published by the students of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, as a source of news for the University and printed in the Seahawk, I have to question political values. Does Rosa really feel the way that her email portrayed, or have her socialist. My point is this: Rosa is now a senior, and her daddy seems to be fighting her battles for her. Was she threatened by the emails? Who knows? But she needs to realize that if she was so willing to insensiively open her mouth about the attacks at such an ill appointed time, she needs to be willing to take the heat that comes from that, To me, it seems that Rosa Fuller seemed to now wants that to stop at what she says. Well, too bad. I believe that Rosa's ideals are nothing more than rhetoric, which can hardly be called factual. College is a time to create our own values and ideals, not just that our parents so readily believe in. So Rosa, and Rosa's daddy, if VOU can't handle the heat. kitchen and keep your trap was not a threat). Brad

Letters to the Editor

WASH YOUR

HANDS. 60 DO

IT NOW

OPEN ANY

MAIL!

STAYSKAL

staff writer

Editorial Viewpoint

Student Media Board vs. WLOZ

Last semester, fliers decorated the for support to "Save WLOZ," the campus' student run radio station. The radio station closed down last January and the Student Media Board is ready to vote

In actuality, most students on the UNCW campus don't know that there was a campus radio station. One imporactually listen WLOZ if it were reinstated? The FM signal it used was not only unlicensed by the FCC, but so weak no one off campus could hear it. Whatever becomes of WLOZ, it will not continue as a broadxast radio station.

The radio station is no the only stuships. The Seshawk and Atlantis are running short of funds in their budgets.

the breaks on an economy that began slowing last spring. Low advertising dent Body Television have created constudent media. How does the SMB plan to compensate for the lack of funds?

By closing the radio station permabut most likely it would go into a savings account. The media board will ask for a $2 increase in fees for each student this semester. Students have been up at arms about the increases in their fees. With the impending increase in student fees for the construction of the new union and other campus projects, does another $2 really

Student media is an important but under appreciated part of UNCW life. Writing for The Seahawk gives students experience in journalism and gets them involved in campus events. It supplies news and features that inform students about the around town and around the mit their own works: poetry, photos, drawings and stories, and teaches staff try like Wilmington is, media organizaare good ways to gain valuable experi-

Student media acts as a laboratory for students interested in pursuing careers in publishing, public relations and advertising in addition to print journalism board will receive enough money to fund even more into television broadcasting and film.

Guest Commentary

I am writing in response to an editorial published in the Oct. 18 edition of The Seahawk. As a student of Dr. Lisa Pollard, I was shocked that someone would unjustly twist her words, changing them from their original humanitarian approach to something so hateful. Her words did not mean to imply that the United States was at fault for the events of Sept. 11.

Yes, in countries like Iraq and Afghani stan there are thousands of children dying from malnutrition and from the violence that wrenches their countries. Americans, college students especially, need to put this into perspective, because we are the next rulers of this country. It is us that will have to make decisions on foreign policy. The most harmful action that we as students can make at this point in our lives is to turn our heads and fill ourselves with ignorance, not awareness. Responding to violence with more violence is not the answer. The hatred towards America is only going to increase dramatically as more and more Afghani civilians

Diplomacy and a reevaluation of American foreign policy might help us uncover the reasons behind such a horrible act of

Jessica Chaffin

ghanistan could feed these starving chil-

There is a growing communication gap lence is only widening that gap. Our professors at UNCW are not out to contaminate our views on how the world works. Their job is to educate students on what they know. These people were not just hired off the streets, they are educated and they know what they're talking about. We are all in school to learn; what use will is be to close our minds to knowledge besides wasting space that many children would give anything to have? news, read the papers and educate ourselves on what is going on in the world We will be the leaders of tomorrow, let us not make the same mistakes again. When the final death tolls come from New York and Washington, there will be many want the only thing in common between are all orphans?