

Freshman Feelings

by Rebecca Carter

If one has ever been a Freshman in any school, he knows the lack of confidence instilled in every heart during the first year on a new campus. We, St. Andrews' beginning Freshmen Class, arrived on our "treeless" campus with the same timidity and expectation of countless other newcomers. The first night of our embarking on a four-year adventure was the hardest time; however, one man stretched out his hand and pulled us up from our low ebb. Since our first night that hand has continued reaching out to lend us the confidence we need to complete our education.

One dark December day this helping, loving, reassuring hand was unwillingly taken away. The man had overworked himself, and his heart, which had been so kind to others, warned him that he must slow down. Every student on campus prayed for the return of his health, and God answered the call. Our friend was returned to once again give out an understanding for others that can only be developed with maturity.

Thursday, April 12, an inauguration took place on the campus. Dignitaries and educational leaders from all over North Carolina came to take the hand of this same man in congratulations as he became duly installed in the office of college president. Our hearts swelled in pride to know that President John F. Kennedy and Governor Terry Sanford acknowledged the worth of the man we value so highly.

This kind hand and heart belong to Dr. Ansley Moore. We, the Freshmen of St. Andrews, wish to congratulate him on his official inauguration as President of our fine Presbyterian college. We, also, express appreciation to Dr. Moore for the countless aides he has given our class above and beyond the call of duty.

Student Center Board Plans Talent Show

The Student Center Board and the Intramural Sports Council have put out a campuswide call for all available talent to participate in a talent show to be presented Saturday night, April 28.

Any individual or group wishing to participate is invited to audition before the committee in charge of the show, this composed of Larry Fowler and Nanci Crowell representing the Student Center Board, and Bunk Spann and Cecil Chewing representing the Intramural Council. Professor Maurice Stirewalt is lending his efforts to the committee in an advisory capacity.

The committee welcomes any type of act, be it odd, unusual, or reasonably serious. Variety is the chief objective of this presentation, intended to sample a crosssection of all the talent on campus.

Anyone interested is to contact some member of the committee. Times for the auditions are to be arranged.
