ST. ANDREWS PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE, LAURINBURG, N. C.

MARCH 19, 1963

Final Bell Awaited By Students, Profs

ON THE AVENUE—In anticipation of next week's casual strolls through the Village, James Jordan and Bill Abrams struggle with luggage while Florence Girrard, Margaret Sharpe, Sara Alex Bradbury and Andrea Barton prepare to soak up atmosphere.

Group To Visit New York City During Spring Holidays

Thirty-one students will participate in St. Andrews' Seminar on the Arts in New York City March 21-27.

Accompanied by Miss Doris Hawse, Jemison Hoskins and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McDonald, the group will visit museums, art exhibits and the theater.

The purpose of such a seminar as stated by McDonald, one of its organizers, is to give students a chance to see actual performances and works of art which they have studied only in books.

"We hope to start a spring holiday tradition," McDonald added, "and make a trip for culture every year."

The caravan will depart from St. Andrews Thursday night, taking the "Blue Express" to Hamlet and their first train station. They will arrive in New York City at 10 a.m. Friday.

Modern Art — First Tour

The first tour will include the Museum of Modern Art, where the works of Picasso, Chagall and Rouault are displayed. Later in the week the tour will include the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Frick and the Guggenheim Museums, and a current Broadway play, A Man for All Seasons.

Prior to attending the Metropolitan Opera performance of Petrovich Moussorgsky's Boris Godunov, the seminar participants plan a pre-opera dinner at the picturesque Kean's English Chop House.

Free Time Provided

Other sightseeing and social events during the week will be left largely up to the impulses and desires of the individuals.

Central Park, the Empire State Building, Carnegie Hall, Lincoln Center, Rockefeller Center, Tiffany's and Takoshimaya's can be expected to attract part, or all of the group, while Greenwich Village will probably be deluged with visitors from St. Andrews.

Students Plan Mountain Trek

Six students and their three advisors will spend the first three days of spring vacation in the mountains of North Carolina.

The mountain climbers are St. Andrews' delegates to the North Carolina Education Association convention in Asheville, March 21-23. During the meet, they and representatives of Student National Education Association chapters will make plans for the new season.

On Friday night, March 22, Mr. and Miss Future Teacher of St. Andrews, Norman Foxworth and Lois Tedder, will be presented to the General Session along with the students representing other chapters.

Other St. Andrews delegates will be Charles Quick, Sybil Thomas and Peggy Dillard, juniors; and senior Nancy Gray. Advisors will be Dr. Helen Ingram and Dr. and Mrs. John P. Daughtrey.

St. Andrews' SNEA officers for next year were installed at a dinner meeting last week. The newly-elected leaders are Sybil Thomas, president; Lane Deese, vice president; Mary Wallace, secretary; Ann Anderson, treasurer; and Brenda Johnson, historian.

Joyce Bryant To Present Flute Recital This Month

Miss Joyce M. Bryant of the music faculty will present a flute recital in the Liberal Arts Auditorium, Sunday afternoon, March 31, at 4 p.m.

An assistant professor of Music Education and Flute at St. Andrews, Miss Bryant will be accompanied by pianist Lewis H. Hoy.

The recitalist, a native of Lancaster, Penn., received her B.S. Degree in Education from Ohio University. She studied at Syracuse University and received her Master of Music Education from Florida State University.

Once the private secretary to the dean of the School of Music at Florida State University, Miss Bryant has previously taught in public school systems and at Flora Macdonald College.

She is first flutist in the Fayetteville (N.C.) and Florence (S.C.) Symphony Orchestras. She has performed in solo capacity at divisional conventions of the American Guild of Organists and at the Music Educators National Conference.

Miss Bryant will open her recital with Sonata by Jacques Hotteterre. The program will also include selections by Quantz, Vaughan-Williams, Rogers, Widor, Faure, Debussy and Poulenc.

Club To Sponsor Roman Holiday

There's nothing better than a holiday — unless it is two such blessed events. On March 30, three days after the return from spring recess, Sigma Lambda Gamma will sponsor a Greek-Roman holiday in the Student Center cafeteria.

From 8 till 11 p.m. all good Greeks and Romans will dance to music by their Scotch friends, the Highlanders. A floorshow will be presented by the Junior Classical League of Bennettsville, S. C.

The dance will climax an evening in the ancient tradition, for supper that night will be served by toga-clad Roman slaves. The aristocratic diners will, as usual, sit on the floor for the meal.

Tickets for the dance will be on sale at $1.50 for couples and one dollar for soloists.

Highland Players To Participate In Play Festival

High hopes will accompany the Highland Players Friday as they present two plays in the District Play Festival of the Carolina Dramatic Association at Pfeiffer College.

First place ratings at this event will mean further presentation of the group's productions at the state dramatic festival at Chapel Hill in April.

The one-act plays, "Moony's Kid Don't Cry" by Tennessee Williams and Thornton Wilder's "The Happy Journey," were presented here last Friday and Saturday.

Maurice Stirewalt, professor of history, is director of Williams' play. Members of the cast include Charles Ellis, senior, and Mary Elizabeth Cobb, sophomore.

Directing the play by Wilder is Thomas Johnson, professor of English. The cast includes Ann Anderson and Norwood Maddy, juniors; and Sherrie Crawford, Joy McGee, Jerry Hurst and Bob Parkman, freshmen.

MISS BRYANT

Democratic Project

Democracy is the word — even in the Sophomore Class's long-range project, the erection of entranceways to the college.

All interested students are asked to sketch a proposed college entranceway.

Student sketches should be submitted by Friday, March 29 to President Bill Campbell or Ann Tracy and Preston, project committee chairmen.

Who's Who' Honorees Announced

St. Andrews' 13 representatives selected for "Who's Who Among American Colleges and Universities" are announced today. Recognition of their achievement will be at a dinner in their honor Wednesday night.

St. Andrews honorees include Wayne Ballard; Jim Bunnell, Larry Fowler, Faye Hooks, Harriett Johnston, Dianne Kearns, Roberta Parker, Martha Smith, Earl Vaughan and Mary Frances Wheeler, seniors; and Carol Brooks, Nanci Crowell and Martha Walsh, juniors.

Two Seated Dinners

Supper will be served Wednesday at two seated dinners, at 5 p.m. and at 6:30 p.m., at which time the awardees will be recognized formally and presented their certificates.

Deans Ralph Hester and Rodger Decker will preside at the dinners. The Freshman Class has accepted the table service as its gesture in recognition of the "Who's Who" honorees.

Students should pick up special meal tickets for the particular dinner they plan to attend in the Office of Student Affairs or the Office of the Dean of Students.

St. Andrews students listed in "Who's Who" were selected by students and faculty here and were reviewed by a national board. (See Pics. Page 6)
