

Since the founding of St. Andrews College, there has been a Christmas tradition for the seniors. This tradition lent itself to an evening of gaiety and fun on December 4 when the Senior Class met to decorate the Student Center.

Gathering in the Student Center for an evening of fun, fellowship, and frolic, the members of the senior class had, as one member put it, "The most fun ever!"

Mrs. Dove with her usual vibrant spirit was hostess for the occasion.

The main lounge was a bedlam of laughing seniors. Here was a group untangling lights for the huge tree; there was a group assembling the wreath which was to hang over the front door. One jolly group designed and created the mistletoe ornament which was hung over the entry to the Post Office.

The tree took on new dimensions as the seniors—assembly line style—put on the lights, balls, and tinsel. The final touch was the placing of the star on the topmost branch. Judi Kline was honored with this task. After a few mishaps and not a small amount of struggle the star was in place. As the lights came on, all agreed that it was the prettiest yet.

Several unfortunate accidents failed to dampen the festive spirit of the class of '66 on their night. Linda Graham is reported to be the broken balls champ, and no one is quite sure who is responsible for the spilt gum-drop tree.

The evening drew to a close as the seniors, led by Roger Lamb, chorused the songs of Christmas at each dormitory.

As the group returned to the dorms, the echoes of the new class cheer rang in the night air.

Tommy Beason leads members of the Senior Class in decorating the Christmas tree in the Main Lounge of the Student Center.

Mrs. Dove, Janet Quattlebaum, and other members of the Senior Class decorate the Gum Drop Tree atop the Student Center piano.

